Caira places Water Dept. under DPW

by Larz F. Neilson

In a major organizational change, Town Manager Michael Caira on Tuesday placed the Wilmington Water Dept. under the umbrella of the town Dept. of Public Works.

The move follows the retirement of Paul Duggan, who stepped down last week as water superintendent.

Caira said that he intends to hire a superintendent of water and sewer, but that the department will be under DPW Supt. Bob Palmer, who is now in charge.

Caira said that he had conducted his own review of the Water Dept. operations, and was not happy with the way it was being run. He determined that a major change was needed. He then asked Palmer to assume the responsibility.

He said the change would allow the town to better manage its operations with limited resources and eliminate duplication.

Responding to a question about Palmer assuming more power, Caira said that it was not a power grab, and the move was not initiated by Palmer. The DPW had previously absorbed the cemetery and tree operations, when Prop. 2 1/2 took effect in 1981. Prior to the consolidation of those departments into the DPW, Palmer had been highway superintendent.

"The people out there talking are afraid the status quo is changing," said Caira. "And it is. The ballgame is over."

He said that the feeling had existed in the Water Dept. that they were separate from town operations.

"We ought to get 40 hours of real work out of the Water Dept." he said. "If anybody is not happy, the door swings both ways."

Caira said that his first feedback came at 5 p.m. Tuesday, when a developer called and said, "Boy, you've got big" Caira said he took that as a compliment.

Caira said that financially, the Water Dept. would remain separate, and that he was not doing anything that would violate the law under which the department operates.

Hat Day

Hat Day has become an annual event at the Shawsheen School in Wilmington. It gives the students and teachers an opportunity to pay attention to what's on top of their heads, rather than what's inside. On Friday, hundreds of youngsters wore hats to school. Some were off the rack, while others were modified, and still others were created just for the occasion.

Jenny McConnell got a head start on spring with this flowered bonnet.

Diane Dellascio made her own hat, calling it "Junk Head."

Shanna Sartori wore the hat of a damsel from midieval times.

Erin McDonough wore a stylish fedora, while her best friend Laurie Kennison donned a zoo hat.

Belmore at odds with authority members over voted directive

by Arlene Surprenant

Ella Belmore, executive director of the Wilmington Housing Authority, found herself on the hot seat Tuesday night over a motion made at the January meeting and her alleged failure to follow through on a directive from her board.

The motion had asked that Belmore seek an opinion from Larry Curtis on the need for a handicapped ramp for the east wing of the new elderly building at Deming Way. Curtis is a member of the local handicap commission and serves as a community access monitor. Curtis last summer conducted an access survey of the new units of housing at Deming Way and submitted a list of items which he felt were not in compliance with accessibility requirements.

WHA member Al Meegan originally bought the issue up saying another ramp might be necessary in case of an emergency. Currently there are two ramps by the building, one in front and one in back. Those ramps, Belmore told her board last month, were enough under standards set by the Architectural Access Board so that there was no need of a third ramp. In a two to one vote, Belmore was directed to check out the issue with Curtis. Meegan and Dan Gillis voted in favor of the motion while Joan Sadowski voted against.

On Tuesday, Meegan tried to determine if the director had followed through on the board's directive. Belmore sidestepped the question saying she had to listen to the building's architect and would not be put in the middle between the architect and an outside individual.

"You cannot get stuck in the middle on these questions," Belmore said, adding,"I don't think I can do it, Al."

Gillis came to Belmore's rescue saying he had looked into the situation and found the building met legal requirements without the third ramp. He said, although he wanted to do what was right to meet the needs of the disabled, the ramp was not a priority at this time. Gillis added, in case of an emergency, other tenants could help those in wheelchairs over an eight inch step at the end of the ramps.

Meegan persisted.

"My problem is we had a motion. We voted a motion (and) nothing was carried out," Meegan said.

Chairman Tom Siracusa sided with Meegan.

"To have the executive director say I'm not going to do it, that's a problem," Siracusa said. He told Belmore,"You do not work for the architect; you work for this board."

When the chairman said there seemed to be a communication problem, Gillis maintained the problem was with Meegan and Siracusa. The chairman ruled Gillis out of order.

"You're out of order the way you run meetings," countered Gillis.

During the meeting, Meegan also questioned the director's performance in another matter. He asked why three months had passed and no action was taken to purchase a computer for the housing authority office as Belmore had been directed to do by the board. Meegan worried if a computer wasn't purchased soon, the state may ask for the money back. Belmore said, since the cost is under $10,000, the Executive Office of Communities and Development requires that she look at three different computers before making a decision. There was no explanation forthcoming as to why that wasn't done.

WHA to return $134K

by Arlene Surprenant

The requested return of $134,104 in modernization and development funds by the state had several members of the Wilmington Housing Authority up in arms Tuesday night.

Members Al Meegan and Dot Butler, and Chairman Tom Siracusa, all questioned why the funds were being returned when they could be used for work which still needs to be done at Deming Way. They pointed to such things as cabinets and counters in the elderly units, cracks in the sidewalks, loose doors which rattle in the wind, and water in the basements of some units.

Executive Director Ella Belmore explained the Executive Office of Communities and Development is changing its previous policy of letting state funds stay in housing authority accounts. From now on, she said, the monies will stay in the Massachusetts Public Bond Fund where they will reportedly accrue more interest.

Belmore said she was returning monies from the following accounts: $28,833 from the modernization of Deming Way; $8,314 from the home for autistic children;$39,965 from the account for the new elderly building; and $56,991 from the account for a single family home. Belmore added she was withholding some money for such things as the purchase of a new computer, to cover administrative costs, and for the contractor of the new elderly building.

Siracusa was angered by the proposed action. He said it was "beyond comprehension" that Belmore was sending back funds and the board couldn't do anything about it. Belmore explained the funds were allocated for specific purposes and could not be transferred to other areas.

"You can't use it for anything else," she said.

Butler asked what would happen if there were no money remaining in the specific accounts.

"What would they do?" she asked, causing a ripple of laughter among those in attendance.

Meegan went in a different direction.

"Why hasn't the money been utilized in two years?" he asked.

Belmore said it could only be used if it was spelled out in a certain contract. She noted just because the money is going back doesn't mean the board can't request the funds again for another purpose. Many on the board were dubious they'd ever see the money again, given the state's fiscal situation. Members had hoped to use some of the funds for a single family home on Houghton Road.

Siracusa continued to pursue the matter. He asked more than once, "What went wrong?"

Dan Gillis backed the director's action and responded that nothing had gone "wrong" and EOCD was only changing a previous policy.

Siracusa said he wanted the board to do something to avoid a similar situation from happening in the future.

"I still honestly, truthfully think we could have done something better," he said, pointing to problems remaining in Deming Way.

Gillis accused Siracusa of being inexperienced and not knowing enough about the workings of EOCD. Joan Sadowski suggested the chairman contact EOCD and familiarize himself with the state's funding policy.

Chief calls gambling allegations unfounded

by Larz F. Neilson

Chief of Police Bobby Stewart has denied allegations that he had been gambling at local clubs. The allegations were published on the front page of the Lowell Sun, based on preliminary opening statements given by a defense attorney in the gambling trial of three local men.

Stewart said that opening statements in a trial are not subject to objections in court, and are untested statements.

The chief said that in testimony, VFW Commander Elmer Parker had been asked if Stewart had ever played the poker machine at the club. Parker replied that he had. Asked when, Parker said that it was when Stewart was a sergeant.

Stewart told the Town Crier that he had in fact played the poker machine as a sergeant, but that he had been chief for 13 years. Furthermore, he said he had no knowledge of any involvement of the use of the machine for gambling.

He said that he had not been in any of the local clubs since becoming chief, feeling that it was not appropriate, although he maintained his membership in the VFW. He said that the only exception would be visiting a club following the Memorial Day parade.

He said that he felt the allegations of his and selectmen using the poker machines were put forth by the attorneies trying to intimidate him into dropping charges.

Stewart was never called to the stand during the trial.

The gambling trial in Cambridge Superior Court this week has three Wilmington men on charges of conducting gambling operations. Police had seized poker machines from three local clubs in August 1990. Gerald Vinal was the owner of Monte Carlo Rentals, and Stephen Shepardson and David Hanley were employees. They are charged with arranging for payoffs to players of the poker machines, taking in an alleged $6000 to $7000 a week from the machines.

Testimony in the trial concluded on Tuesday, with closing arguments scheduled for Wednesday. The case is also expected to go to the jury on Wednesday.

DPW project on 'fast' track

by Arlene Surprenant

Improvements to the Route 125/ Andover Street intersection will continue on a fast track following last Thursday's 25 percent design hearing on the project by the state Department of Public Works. Stanley Marshall, DPW project manager, promised town officials, residents, and representatives from area businesses his department will move the project along as fast as possible. He said he expects to advertise the work this fall and have construction underway by the spring of 1993.

According to Project Engineer Ko Ishikura, who works for Green International Affiliates Inc, the consulting firm that came up with the design, there have been 25 accidents at the intersection. The number includes one fatality and one case of personal injury. The town has supported area businesses seeking to make the intersection safer for motorists. To do that, a traffic signal will be installed; Rt. 125 will be widened for a length of 2,000 feet to provide two general lanes and one exclusive left turn lane; and Andover Street will be widened for a length of 250 feet in each direction to provide one exclusive right turn lane and one general lane.

DPW representatives said there will be some land takings for right of way entries for minor sloping work. Right of Way Engineer Martin Condon said it would be up to the town to acquire the necessary land rights.

The project's construction costs will come out to $360,000. Eighty percent of the cost will be borne by the federal government and 20 percent will come from the state. Local industries have already contributed $23,000 to the project.

Those speaking out at the hearing were unanimously in support of the project. However, a few residents of Andover Street feared the signal and left turn lane onto their street would make it too easy for traffic to use Andover Street for a cut thru to Route 62 and I-93. The additional traffic would increase the number of industrial vehicles already in their neighborhood, they said.

Andover Street homeowner Adele Passmore was one of those concerned about the traffic impact. She suggested the state consider installing a sign at the intersection limiting thru traffic onto her street during peak morning hours. Marshall said he would consider her request.

Several businessmen spoke out on the dangers faced by their employees as they come into the intersection on their way to work.

"I really feel like I'm risking life and limb going to work in the morning," said one employee. Dennis Kelley of OffTech agreed many of his workers are "petrified" of that intersection.

Anyone interested in the project has 10 days from the hearing date to submit written comments and concerns to the DPW. After the comment period, the design will go through the 75 and 100 percent phases and an Environmental Notification Form will be issued for the project.

14 families chosen for affordable units

by Arlene Surprenant

Fourteen lucky winners in Saturday's affordable housing lottery will soon have new homes, provided they qualify for a mortgage under standards set by the Boston Five bank. The bank is now checking out the income level, employment status, and overall debt of the potential homeowners.

The lottery was sponsored by the Wilmington Housing Partnership to fill 14 affordable units in the second construction phase of the Shawsheen Commons housing development. Planning and Conservation Director Lynn Duncan said Tuesday she assumes that phase two construction will get underway in the spring.

A total of 81 names were drawn over the weekend. In case one of the 14 families chosen don't qualify, said Duncan, the next person in line will have a chance at the unit. Of the 14 winners, eight were Wilmington residents. The decision was made to delay the lottery from last summer, as originally planned, to February so there was not too much of a time gap between the drawing and the moving in process.

The controversial 220 unit project has suffered several delays, the latest due to a hitch with MEPA (Massachusetts Environmental Policy Act) over mitigation. The project is now back on track with an advertisement last week seeking contractors to bid on the installation of larger water mains along Shawsheen Avenue from Aldrich Road to Hopkins Street. The water and sewer department required that proponents replace the smaller pipes along the main road to ensure adequate water pressure for the development and surrounding area. A half million dollar CDAG grant will help pay the cost of the work.

Bids on the job will be opened March 4, said Duncan. She added most of the work will be completed by June though final paving on Shawsheen will not be done until the fall.

Partnership to give out mini grants

by Arlene Surprenant

A total of $2,000 will soon be made available to local educators in the form of mini grants through the Wilmington Business/School Partnership.

According to William Richmond of Continental Cablevision, head of the mini grant program, grants of up to $500 each will be distributed to teachers whose applications are accepted by his committee. All applicants must submit a form describing their proposal to enrich their students' classroom experience by the March 6 deadline.

The mini grant program is designed to encourage creativity in the schools, develop more effective methods of instruction, and reward imaginative education programs. Entries will be judged on the proposal's objective, innovation, number of students affected, direct benefits to pupils, relationship to the curriculum, clear writing, and a reasonable budget. Grant recipients will be announced in late March. All grants are to be expended by next December, added Richmond.

The Mini Grant Committee is only one committee in the newly restructured partnership program. Liaison Al Fessenden said the decision was made to set up several committees with different responsibilities to better organize the entire program. To date, there are five committees besides the Mini Grant Committee. They are the Scholarship Committee, which will outline guidelines for student scholarship aid; the Career Awareness Committee, which will develop career entry programs and a curriculum involving local businesses; the Workshop Committee, which will develop teacher workshops; the Fiscal Projects Committee, which will come up with monetary ideas to benefit the school system; and the Membership and Publicity Committee, which will work to increase membership and awareness of the program.

Frank Sullivan of Screenprint has been named the partnership's first chairman. Sullivan will oversee all committees, run partnership meetings once a month, and direct the program for 1992. Fessenden will retain his title of liaison and oversee both the school's and businesses' interest in the partnership program and bear ultimate responsibility for all committees.

15 seek office in town election

by Arlene Surprenant

With three weeks remaining, a total of 15 candidates have taken out nomination papers for nine open seats on Wilmington boards. The only board with no interest seems to be the redevelopment authority. There are six applicants each for the board of selectmen and the school committee, one for the Shawsheen Tech School Committee, and two for the housing authority.

In the crowded race for two three year seats on the board of selectmen are incumbent Chester Bruce and challengers Thomas Siracusa, Elmer Parker, Tony Capuano, William Haru, and Margaret Imbimbo. Bob Doucette will not be seeking re-election. Incumbents Aldo Caira, John DeMarco, and Andrea Paglia may find the going tough against former school committee members Brad Jackson, James Demos, and Linda McMenimen. All six will be vying for three, three year seats on the school committee.

Incumbent John Gillis is alone in his quest for another three year term on the regional school board. Al Meegan is running again for his five year seat on the housing authority. Also in the race for a second vacancy is Charles Fiore Jr. There are no candidates, as yet, for a five year seat on the redevelopment authority.

Specialist on board by March?

by Arlene Surprenant

A half dozen candidates have already applied for the job of environmental specialist in the planning - conservation office, according to Lynn Duncan, who now heads the consolidated department.

According to Duncan, there's a "good indication" that Wilmington will get a qualified individual on board by mid-March, given the current economic climate and high rate of unemployment.

"This is a good opportunity for someone and a great opportunity for the town," said Duncan.

Duncan will be handling the administrative details for conservation. The specialist is being hired to provide the town with technical knowledge to protect the town's wetlands. The job will cover such things as the identification of plants to confirm wetlands boundaries, the delineation of soils, and interpretation of maps.

The job will pay in the low $20,000 salary range.

BITS AND PIECES

Hurry to get a Social Security number for your baby. If your youngster turned one year old in 1991, his or her number must be on your tax return if you want to keep your exemption for the child. (Hospitals in some areas make registration part of the birth-certificate process.)

At the start of the year, indexing moved up personal exemptions, standard deductions and tax brackets, because of inflation.

Home office expenses are deductible, even if you didn't use that office for the whole year. Say you didn't start your own business until September, you can still claim deductions for part of the year.

Job hunting expenses are deductible if you don't get a new job. And if you do have a job that requires a move, you can deduct house hunting expenses even if you don't find a house right away and have to take several trips.

Taking out a mortgage? Be sure to pay "points" by separate check. If they are deducted from the loan, they are not tax deductible.

Middle schoolers hold food drive

by Arlene Surprenant

Students at the West Intermediate School in Wilmington are getting a lesson in helping those less fortunate than themselves. Starting Tuesday, students began to bring in canned goods and prepackaged food staples for local families in need. All food collected during the two week drive will be delivered to the newly opened food pantry, The Commissary.

According to music teacher Joseph Plassman, who is spearheading the project, alot of preparation went into the drive and ways to motivate the youngsters to bring in enough food to meet the school's goal of 650 items.

Two assemblies were held on Monday depicting the need and the types of products desired. During the assemblies, the students viewed a slide show on the homeless and hungry in urban areas and listened to accompanying music that was composed by several students. Bob Nelson was on hand from The Commissary to talk to the youngsters and answer questions.

Plassman said he was pleased by the students' reaction to the show.

"They really were impacted by it. The slides made it all pretty relevant to the kids," he said.

Teachers initially brought in 150 food items which were made into a display in the hallway to draw attention to the drive. Staff members will keep track of donations on a huge thermometer hung on a door in the main foyer. All food which is collected will be packed in cartons and taken to The Commissary on Friday, February 14. Judging from the interest already, Plassman expects the drive will more than exceed its goal.

Besides Plassman, those serving on the specialist team in charge of the drive are teachers Susan Eaton, Bill Finer, Don Hawes, Ginger Littlefield, Joyce Peterson, Neal Roberts, and Dan Spriggs.

Bob DiPalma, one of the two men who set up the local food pantry, said he was pleased both by the school's commitment and last Wednesday's "tremendous" turnout of elderly, special needs residents, and families who came to the Swain School pantry in need of a little assistance. Last Wednesday was the official opening of The Commissary. It will be open to Wilmington residents who show proof of residency each Wednesday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. The American Legion has offered to hold a food drive for the month of March, said DiPalma. Staples such as sugar, flour, canned meats and vegetables, baby food, cereal, frozen foods and fresh produce, coffee, and tea, are being accepted each Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Swain School is located across from the town common on Middlesex Avenue.

School board decries 'hidden agendas'

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington School Committee members targeted "hidden agendas" and a lack of respect for each other's opinions as the areas most in need of improvement in a recent self-evaluation of the board. In addition, they gave the lowest marks to questions concerning their relationship with the administration and their highest marks to making education and students their prime concern and abiding by the board's code of ethics.

The evaluation contained 42 questions in five different areas: board meetings, relationship with school personnel, board/community relations, personal qualities, and other. Committeemen were asked to rank each question in a range from -2, corresponding to "never," to 2, which corresponded to "always."

In their summaries, almost all members pointed to one strength: the potential and diversity of the individual members of the board. Some members urged the board to give more support to the superintendent. One asked to prepare more education oriented agendas. Some suggested spending less time on parliamentry procedure and more time on the task at hand. Andrea Paglia called for more respect and less bias.

" We can disagree but we don't need to be disagreeable," said Peg Kane.

Bob Peterson noted while the board as a whole has "great potential," improvement isn't possible due to the "personal agendas of some members."

Limelight brings theater to town

by Arlene Surprenant

Limelight Productions, a local amateur theater group, is planning to bring contemporary drama and comedy productions to Wilmington.

Executive producer Carl Beatrice met with members of the school committee at their last meeting with a request to use the newly-refurbished Barrows Auditorium for rehearsals and the plays. Beatrice said Limelight will pay the custodian and auditorium rental fee. The group is waiting for its non-profit status to be approved, he added.

School Supt. William Fay endorsed the "unique" proposal. He said it was up to the committee to okay a year long permit, which would allow the company to put on plays in March, June, and November. Each play would have an eight week rehearsal schedule and cost theatergoers $10. Fay said the school board would have to draw up a contract and Limelight would have to abide by regulations for the use of the auditorium being drawn up by Performing and Fine Arts Director Lorraine Kalil.

The board unanimously approved a motion to allow Limelight to use the auditorium subject to a review of Kalil's report on the regulations.

LWV points out ballot law changes

The League of Women Voters of Wilmington would like to share some information to help voters be aware of changes in Massachusetts' election law as a result of Question 4 on the 1990 ballot. These changes affect party enrollment and political designation for voters and make it easier for groups to become official political parties.

When registering, a voter can now choose one of the three official parties (Democratic, Republican or Independent Voters) or remain unenrolled ("None" - a status that many used to call "independent," but is now easy to confuse with the new Independent Voters Party.) Another choice is to write in the name of a political designation approved by the Secretary of State in a blank marked "political designation."

If you enroll in one of the three political parties, then during a primary election you may only vote in that party's primary. Belonging to a party does not affect your right to vote in the general election when all voters receive the same ballot and vote for the candidate of their choice regardless of party.

Unenrolled voters may vote in party primary elections by choosing a party ballot at the polls. That act automatically enrolls the voter in that party. But reverting to "Unenrolled" is still as easy as filling out a card and returning it to your local election officials at the primary or later by mail or in person.

In order to be able to vote in the March 1992 primary you must be registered by February 11, 1992.

If one percent of registered voters enroll in a political designation, it becomes an official political party. Presently there are six political designations (New Alliance party, Libertarian, Prohibition Party, Socialist, Interdependent 3rd Party, and Green Party USA). If you enroll in one, you may not vote in state or presidential primaries of any of the three official parties. However, you could be helping a group of voters with your beliefs become recognized.

And even after you have made a choice, you may change your enrollment status by notifying your local election officials in writing at least 28 days before a state or presidential primary.

You can get more information from local election officials or by calling the LWV's Voter Information Phone 1-800-882-1649.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Enjoyed reading your article last week about the "Black Kat" Bar. It brought back memories of when we purchased our home here in Wilmington (migrating from Winchester) in 1962, my dad couldn't believe that we were moving to a town where he, as a young adult in 1925-29, came bar-hopping from the North End in Boston! Those evidently were his 'sewing your oats' days and if my memory serves me right, he came here by train from Boston.

Relating his stories to me, I could only imagine that it was like us going to the mountains in New Hampshire for a vacation. He spoke of "Silver Lake" also. I guess he had a lot of good times here in Wilmington before he settled down, married my mom and had a family. Ironically both my sister and I moved here to Wilmington.

The article brought back terrific memories of "my dad' for me.

Thanks for those moments of pleasure I had after reading the article.

Mrs. Pat (Bruno) Puma

Dear Larz:

I want to tell you how much I enjoy reading about the old days in Wilmington. We kids down on West Street had a very happy childhood and we did a lot of things which make me glow when I think of them. When us folks start antiquing, the past gives us a great amount of pleasure.

Your recent editorial regarding the water on Westdale Avenue made me think about the good old days when my friends and I used to sail in Red Foye's cellar every spring. During March and April there was always a couple of feet of water or at least enough to float a good sized mortar bed which we poled from one end to the other pretending we were in Venice, Italy. I enjoyed this experience so much that I enlisted in the Navy at the first opportunity.

We also had a lot of fun fishing in Oulette's cellar hole which was unfinished for several years. It was the last house on Westdale Avenue right next to the railroad tracks. We never did catch any fish but we sure caught a lot of frogs there. I guess the recent global warming period had dried all this land up until the arrival of the nursing home.

I also can recall some wonderful late night fishing expeditions with the editor of the very worthy local paper. It was a wonderful spot off of Salem Street, just before Van Steinberg's gravel pit. (I wonder how many in town know where that was). I found these fishing trips very relaxing and enjoyable. They tell me that the only fish you can get now days come in old tires and paint cans.

Keep up the good work.

Dear Larz:

I cast my vote in favor of Dr. Fay. I'm confident in his ability to oversee the school system, to resolve the important issues, and to promote equality among school employees. I believe in his commitment to the students of Wilmington.

Unfortunately, steady charges of incompetence from school committee members undermine Bill Fay's position. I suspect the accusations have little to do with his performance though; the real source of this ongoing conflict remains packed in the selfsame baggage encumbering the entire women's movement. If you want to get along, go along.

And to Ann Linehan I say, "you make feminism a dirty word."

Respectfully,
Ms. Susan J. Veligor

Dear Larz:

On behalf of all members of Tewksbury Organization Against Illness and Contamination (TOXIC), I would like to thank Greg Reynolds, chairman of the Tewksbury Republican Town Committee and the entire organization for their generous contribution.

We have always said that our attempt to clean up a "sore" in the Town of Tewksbury is a non-partisan issue. They, however, have taken it one step further and have identified it as a civic issue, one in which all Tewksbury residents have a stake.

Their genuine concern for the environment and their neighbors is heartwarming; and their contribution will enable us to continue our efforts to clean up and close, once and for all, the Rocco hazardous waste site.

Sincerely,
Judith Fittery
Spokesperson, Toxic

Dear Larz:

I am writing this letter in response to a letter from Martha Cregan and the committee called South Wilmington Against Toxics (SWAT). I thought that the letter really hit home! I have been to a few Board of Health meetings on these issues about Raffi & Swanson and at a recent meeting when I asked Mr. Ficociello if he thought that the board had the ability to handle the currently health issues in its own town, he replied with "Look, I'm a dentist." This is very sad. We the people of South Wilmington are continuing on at the proud pace to resolve these issues that could effect the future of this area.

In my eyes, addressing this issue (which is probably the strongest health issue this town has ever seen) would be top priority, but the board of health seems to tuck it away as if it were not happening.

Tom Scolastico, Jr.

Dear Larz:

The response I have heard regarding last week's edition of "Frankly Speaking" has been very positive.

It seems that once again Kevin Sowyrda has struck a chord in writing what local citizens have been saying privately for sometime now.

As a former chairman of the Wilmington School Committee, it pains me to witness the on going bickering and internal feuds promoted by the click of which Kevin Sowyrda wrote of last week.

My primary concern here is as a parent. With three school-aged children, my desire is that these three school committee people concentrate on issues rather than personalities.

How can Mrs. Callan, Paglia and Kane expect to be credible in Wilmington when they first demand the resignation of Aldo Caira and then within months the resignation of Bill Fay.

When this destructive group continues to attack personally and avoid all consideration of educational substance, they only bring upon themselves justified criticism such as last week's "Frankly Speaking."

Isn't it time that these individuals realize that the economic problems which exist today demand that the committee unite for the good of the children.

In closing I would remind the politically-motivated triumvirate of the famous saying "We have met the enemy and they are us!"

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Each day we hear of our civil liberties being chipped away. In response to the doomed-from-the start attempt to abridge this writer's First Amendment rights, I offer this response to School Committeewoman Shirley Callan and her attorney, who was so very kind and gracious to contact us this week.

Dear Attorney:

As I recover from a fit of laughter, allow me to thank you and your staff for your lovely "gag order" letter dated January 31, 1992, and written on behalf of your client Shirley Callan. First, I can't believe she'd cough up the dough for this. And to think she once scrutinized phone bills. (Shirl, I'll be watching those warrants to make sure you don't put in for a reimbursement.)

If the Constitution were going to be summarily destroyed, I would have expected at least Hale and Dorr, Ropes and Gray, Rachman and Sawyer or some other established Boston firm. But to challenge me, an award winning columnist who, you write, "will qualify to join the reporting staff of the well-known tabloid, the Star" with a lesser-known firm like yours, well . . . I am quite insulted, indeed!!

And as to your inference that I join the Star . . .well, O.K., what's the offer and benefits? I'd dump Fred in a minute to get an interview with Gennifer Flowers. In fact, I'll work at the Star for free if you promise to represent Hillary Clinton.

Your letter cc'd to Dr. Callan also said my First Amendment rights "have their limits."

Wrong, pal.

As to future references to "her divorce" which you threaten will result in "a claim for recourse" against me, don't worry your pretty little juris doctorate about it. I found the probate document much drier than had been alleged in every coffee shop in Wilmington.

P.S. Please keep in touch with us, and keep in mind our subscription offer of $18.00. (Gee, if you'd enclosed payment with your letter, you would have qualified for our January $1 discount.) There will be plenty more to read during your client's final two years on the school committee.

Briefly in Politics . . .

What the Commonwealth giveth, the Commonwealth taketh away, especially when you haven't spent it in time. The Town Crier has learned that the Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) is retrieving upwards of $150,000 in grant monies originally awarded to the Wilmington Housing Authority. EOCD said the Authority has let the money "just sit there" according to an inside source who also said, "the state is serious, and if we don't send this money back they're going to padlock our Deming Way office."

This isn't the best of news for the authority's Executive Director Ella Belmore, who's had to grapple with a hostile Chairman Mike Donovan, now departed, and a new board comprised of members less than enthusiastic about Belmore's leadership.

But the director contends that grant monies being returned is "not unusual" and that the project, connecting old and new units at Deming Way to the sewer mains, had been "overfunded" from the start. "Because of tight fiscal constraints the state is calling back any money it can," said Belmore.

Is this a case of Belmore the fiscal conservative, or Belmore, not being able to manage grant monies?

Housing authority member Al Meegan seemed pessimistic, and said he'll scrutinize the director for what he described as a trend at the authority to surrender grant monies. "I want the question asked why is this money being called back and why have these funds not been utilized in a timely manner," said Meegan.

One of Wilmington's former state legislators has landed the coveted post of Massachusetts Municipal Association Executive Director. Former Rep. Geoff Beckwith, a Democrat from Reading, will leave his post at the University of Mass. at Lowell to take the MMA post in Boston, succeeding Sheila Cheimitz. Beckwith arrives just as former Wilmington Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski completes his one year term as MMA president.

Beckwith is credited for his personable style, and his appointment announced last week received praise from local leaders. "I only wish Geoff was a conservative Republican, but otherwise he's a competent guy who knows local government and how to bring people together," said Dan Ballou, Chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen.

The Boston Globe carried an intriguing article by Andy Dabilis this past Sunday on the life and times of local town managers in Massachusetts, focusing on the role which managers often play as campaign issues in local races. Tewksbury made the tail-end of the article as an example of a community where a candidate, Jeanne Camara, seeks to remove the town manager.

Selectman Tom Camara was quoted in the article contending that he and his spouse are "diametrically opposed on some issues." However, both Jeanne and Tom Camara have been previously quoted as to their desire to oust Cressman.

Also in the article, Selectman Camara said he and his spouse were not on the verge of setting political precedence because, "We had a father and son team [on the board of selectmen]." But Town Historian Tad Brown disagreed, telling the Town Crier that "I have never heard of such a thing" and that "I have never heard of two relatives or a husband and wife serving together." Brown's best example of a political blood team were the Sullivans, but none of the family members served at the same time.

Are the Camaras destined to make the local Guiness Book?

Wilmington Selectmen Chair Dan Ballou, Jr. will definitely be to your right on Primary Day in Massachusetts March 10. Ballou said he has met with staffers for Republican presidential hopeful Patrick Buchanan and may be recruited as a field coordinator for Massachusetts. Ballou knows the turf well as both a Republican Party activist and former candidate for Middlesex County Treasurer.

Selectman candidate Tony Capuano introduced his first formal budgetary proposal at last week's selectmen meeting, saying he would move to take the money held by the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority. Calling it a "mystery fund," Capuano said the authority fund is needed for the local treasury in anticipation of budget cuts. "There is no reason to lay off cops, firefighters and teachers when that money is being sent down the drain to hire consultants," said Capuano.

Capuano has criticized the appointment of consultant Bruce Campbell by a recent three-to-two vote of the Redevelopment Authority.

Chuck-a-Luck gamblers

Tewksbury VFW held a Las Vegas night fundraiser last week, to raise funds for club renovations. Taking their chances with the Chuck-a-Luck dice were (L to R) Shannon Doherty, Pam Brothers, Kristin Doherty and Missy Glencross. Judging by the stacks of chips, the VFW must have won.

Appeals denies "rescue" bid

by Bill Conlon

Nancy Censullo's property woes continue, after being refused help this week by the Tewksbury Board of Appeals.

Censullo's home, at 75 Michigan Road, was built in the wrong spot. She learned of the mistake last year when she tried to sell the home, and a land survey showed the problem.

She doesn't own the property her home sits on. Dick Sughrue does. To move her house onto her own land would take enormous expense, and the house would end up on the cul-de-sac on Michigan Road. The road is in the wrong place, too.

Sughrue offered to assist her with a land swap, in which Censullo was offered a small parcel of land under her home, in exchange for a small parcel of her land. Sughrue's plan would give him a 20-foot access to his three-plus acres from Michigan Road, where he intends to build two houses, both on one-acre lots, plus keep his existing home.

But the board of appeals refused. By granting all four requests for variances that the case involved, the board would effectively grant two lots to Sughrue without the legally-required 150 feet of frontage. The lot where Mrs. Censullo's home is located would be less than one acre, but approval of such existing home lots is not unusual.

Sughrue said he could legally put houses on his three-plus acres, but he would have to provide access by paving the "paper streets" of Albert Road and Russell Road. Access to the property from Michigan Road would be much easier, he said.

However, the errors of the earlier board of appeals, which liberally granted undersized lots and frontage waivers, returned to haunt the current board.

"The town was clear in saying we should not be splitting lots," said chairman Walter Maciel, stating he could not allow two lots with only 10 feet of frontage each.

While expressing regrets for the trouble faced by Mrs. Censullo and with a request for a new plan that does not detract from the current zoning by-laws, the appeals board voted to deny all four requests for variances.

REPLACING DAMAGED GLASS

QUESTION: Why do glass insurance premiums vary so much in different locations? Also, does depreciation enter into insurance?

ANSWER: Rates for glass insurance vary considerably according to the location. High risk areas will cost more than safe areas. Glass above street level or inside is charged less because of lower exposure to breakage.

There is no dollar limit in a glass insurance policy. The coverage is similar to an "actual value" insurance policy. However, the limit of the insurer's liability shall not exceed the actual cash value of the property at the time of loss.

RATES FOR GLASS insurance will vary depending on the risk of location.

Reading ponders future of municipal light department

To sell or not to sell the Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) was a question which was debated at some length on January 29 by RMLD officials and members of the Reading Finance Committee.

The comment of the Reading edition of the Daily Times Chronicle was: "It's cash-rich, we own it, but...."

The bottom line of the lengthy debate, reporter Maria Silvaggi wrote was: "a cash strapped Reading town government expects a better return on its investment considering the "substantial risk" it shoulders as the owner of the utility."

Members of the Reading Finance Committee, the lady reports grilled RMLD Manager Len Rucker and Commissioners Philip Pacino, Allan Ames, James O'Leary, Bill Hughes and David Swyter.

The RMLD is a unique municipal public utility because it services other municipalities in Massachusetts. It "is the only one in the country" RMLD Manage Len Rucker told the Finance Committee.

At the turn of the century Reading welcomed Wilmington, North Reading, and later, part of Lynnfield into its service area.

The other communities "Rucker told the Fincom "have outstripped us so that we now use less than 20 percent of the power RMLD sells, while Wilmington uses more than 60 percent."

And that reality, reinforced by litigation by the other communities has put the town of Reading into an "unusual position." Reading is responsible for all the problems but is regulated as to the advantages it enjoys.

But the Town of Reading does have the legal authority to sell the RMLD, although it is likely that there would be litigation to test that right.

The problem for Reading is that the other communities do not have to remain in the (RMLD) system. They could withdraw if the RMLD were to be sold, thus diminishing its value.

"More important" the Fincom was told "what ever course the town (Reading) follows is strictly regulated by the state's Department of Public Utilities (DPU) which protects the "best interests" - not of Reading stockholding taxpayers, but of the system's ratepayers."

"The DPU exerts its will for the ratepayers," Rucker explained, based on two factors, quality of service and rates.

And the RMLD rates, according to Rucker are among the state's lowest "because we have long and short term power contracts...and we have less volatility in fuel charges which means less volatility in rates."

"As for quality: The RMLD service is 99.9942 percent reliable. A RMLD customer can expect to be without electricity only 45 minutes per year."

Given those achievements would the DPU consider the sale of RMLD to be of best interest of the ratepayers? was a question which appeared in the Chronicle.

That the DPU might be negative is not surprising. Selling a utility is difficult because "governmental regulating authorities don't want utility disruption through sales."

If the RMLD were to be put up for sale, the power for which RMLD holds long term (20 year) contracts might prove a liability. A potential buyer might not want them, which would leave Reading taxpayers with the obligation to pay for them. There are contracts to the tune of $858,841,785 over 30 years (primarily commitments with Stony Brook Peaker, Stony Brook Intermediate, Seabrook, Hydro Quebec, Millstone and Pilgrim).

Rucker conceded that "Despite the negatives the system is attractive."

Fincom members were more positive, the Chronicle reported.

They argued that the negatives were balanced by power contracts that could be sold at a profit; that the RMLD is in excellent condition; by the worth of its significant assets, including cash reserves.

Further they argue: given the cash reserves Reading should realize more money from the RMLD.

Specifically Fincom Chairman Bill Burditt questioned why the town of Reading doesn't "receive more per year for taxes on RMLD property located here (in Reading, Ed.)?"

Two Reading Fincom members, Vice Chairman Fred VanMagness and member Gerry MacDonald challenged the elected RMLD board members to increase their distribution from the RMLD funds from the $1.25 million they have provided "since 1986."

RMLD Manager Len Rucker explained that some of the money should be retained to invest in the capital plant "in order to maintain high quality services."

Light Board members warned that depleting the capital account could impair the system.

Fincom members did not buy that argument. "Owners of the utility are suffering," they said.

Fincom Vice Chairman VanMagness told the RMLD Commissioners: "You're well funded, You're cash rich."

"Your rates are going up, but the return to us that you show in projections is flat. Your own data attests to the case that we're trying to make. We want a more reasonable return."

The discussion continued. The final statement seems to have been by RMLD member Allen Ames, who told the Fincom that it might be feasible to remold the RMLD into a regional utility, thus releasing the town (of Reading, Ed.) from "the substantial risk" of the enterprise.

Hair is the Total You
By Lisa Anderson
REINFORCEMENTS ON THE WAY
For years, women have sought to strengthen their nails with such dietary supplements as gelatin. Their efforts, however, have availed them little results. Now, there is evidence that a little-known B-vitamin may actually strengthen nails. It has been a long-standing veterinary practice to treat horses with problem hooves with the water-soluble B-vitamin known as biotin. When Swiss researchers applied this treatment to humans with brittle nails, they got very good results. The 32 men and women who received a daily dose of 2.5 milligrams of biotin for six to nine months experienced a 25 percent boost in nail thickness. These results were reported in the "Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology."
Vitamins and professional care can result in beautiful and healthy nails. Student fashion show Feb. 13

Back again by popular demand - the Wilmington High School PAC will present its second annual "Formal Fashion Fantasy." This student centered fashion show will take place on Thursday, February 13, 1992, at 7:30 p.m. in the Cushing gym.

This year 130 students will be featured as they model prom fashions for the 90s. Chantilly Place in Tewksbury will outfit the young ladies, while young men's fashions will be provided by Lowell Formal Wear. High School Principal Paul Fleming and his assistant, Edward Woods, will model the current styles for men. Models will appear in small group cameos to the background music of Mark Venuti.

An added attraction this year will be the appearance of Basic Touch, a local group of student performers. The evening will include an opportunity for parents and friends to purchase Polaroid snapshots of the models. A 50/50 raffle will be held and refreshments will be available during intermission.

All profits from this event will be used to provide scholarships for the senior class at Wilmington High School. Last year's event provided scholarships for nine seniors. The PAC hopes this year's event will net an increase in this number. Donations for the evening will be $5, with a discount donation of $3 for senior citizens and students. For tickets or information contact Dennis at 658-5149. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Raising dough

George Kelley of Wilmington takes the first steps in creating a mouth watering dessert which will be served at the upcoming BHCC Foundation fund raiser. "Evening at the Hampshire House."

Kelley to cook in fundraiser

George Kelley of Wilmington, a second year culinary arts student at Bunker Hill Community College, will be a participant in the upcoming "Evening at the Hampshire House" sponsored by BHCC's Foundation and Hampshire House owner Tom Kershaw. The fund raising dinner is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 6. The purpose of the evening is to thank college patrons and to raise funds for scholarships, cultural programs and capital projects.

Fillet of Sole Baroness with Sauce Champenoise and Supreme de Volaille Suedoise en Croute are just two of the French gourmet delicacies George will help prepare. He and his classmates will be in the spotlight as vintage wine is poured and hors d'oeuvres like Macadamia Chicken Bouches and stuffed Cajun Adouille sausage are offered...and once the dessert of Black Forest cheese cake is placed before guests he and his classmates will take a bow as their exquisite culinary skills are applauded. He and his classmate chefs will be well on their way into meaningful positions within the restaurant industry.

"I've had a life time interest in cooking but sort of fell into it as a profession," said Kelley who is a chef for Kings Feast Catering and House Caterer for the Knights of Columbus Hall in Wilmington. "In catering, you learn to think fast on your feet, especially when your catering a job away from your base and you discover that you've forgotten an important tool or ingredient. You learn to improvise and maintain your customer's confidence in you." Kelley's goal is to become an executive chef in a large hotel.

"George has learned from some of the finest professionals in the field," said Arthur Buccheri, Department Head and former restaurant owner. "We have one of the best programs in the Greater Boston area. Our students will all have jobs when they graduate and they are taught by faculty with impeccable credentials and degrees from such fine schools as Johnson & Wales, Newbury College, and The American Institute of Baking. Our faculty is also involved in professional organizations and enjoy status within the industry. The only difference between our program and others is the cost - our tuition is lower."

Youth soccer signups

The Wilmington Youth Soccer Association has announced signups for it's spring 1992 in-town soccer season. Teams will be formed for players in kindergarten through grade three.

Parents and other volunteers are encouraged to coach or help in all facets of the program. Since the spring in-town season emphasizes recreation and instruction, it is an excellent opportunity for both parents and players to learn more about the fast-growing sport of soccer.

Registration dates are Tuesday, February 11 and Wednesday, February 12 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the K of C Hall behind St. Thomas Church.

The spring fee is $20 per player, with a maximum of $50 charged per family. A $5 per player late registraion fee will be assigned for each late registration form submitted after the February 12 signup.

Registration forms will be distributed through the Wilmington schools, with additional forms available at the signup sessions.

Don't panic in the face of rabies' epidemic

by Bill Conlon

We've got a problem. Or at least, we will in about a year.

There is an epidemic of the rabies virus heading this way. By early 1993 at the latest, we should see an increase in rabies cases in this part of Massachusetts.

Don't panic, don't shoot your dog yet, and don't go scrubbing the kids in alcohol. It's not that bad.

The incoming "epizootic" of the rabies virus is centered in raccoons. The disease, apparently, is cutting down the huge number of raccoons, and we certainly have a lot of them hereabouts. Roadsides show that.

And if raccoons are infected with rabies, snapping at everything they see, we can also expect dogs, cats, and virtually any animal to run the risk of exposure.

The current rabies epizootic was found in West Virginia's raccoons a while back, and it's spreading at the rate of 25 to 60 miles per year, a recent story in Massachusetts Wildlife reports. (If you don't get this excellent magazine, do it now. The price is right, the topics are very intelligent and strictly local, and it's published by the Mass. Division of Fisheries & Wildlife. Good stuff!)

The article, by MW editor Peter Mirick, is a frightening and very interesting story about rabies.

Rabies, Peter writes, is one of the most amazing viruses known. For a simple twist of protein, without any brain, it does unbelievable things. There are four varieties of rabies, he writes, centered in skunks, bats, raccoons and foxes, but virtually any mammal can be infected.

Once rabies infects an animal, the story states, the virus spreads along the nervous system until it reaches the brain. There it attacks those parts of the brain covering the bite reflex. After the brain is infected, the virus then jumps to the salivary glands, where it begins reproducing itself at an accelerated rate.

The effect, incredibly, is to turn the victim into a walking syringe. The snap-and-drool stage lasts only about ten days at most, then death is virtually guaranteed.

But the rabies virus works best on its main target animals: fox, skunk, raccoon and bat -- note that all have pointed teeth. If the disease doesn't "like" its victim, it merely causes paralysis and quick death, called "dumb" rabies, instead of the bite-and-slobber. Amazing.

The disease, Pete writes, has been with us since at least the times of the ancient Greeks, possibly longer.

Also, not all animals in a targeted species will develop the disease. It seems that rabies doesn't develop in a certain percentage of the animals exposed, as if sparing them for the future. And rabies shows up only in animals with overpopulations.

One obvious thought is to limit the count of raccoons. Hunting for 'coons was once a popular way to spend a night out with the boys, but raccoon hunting has faded. Pity.

Can rabies affect humans? Yes. Is it fatal? Yes.

There have been only two known survivors of full-blown rabies, and that's scary. Rabies can be treated in the early stages with antibiotics, but once the bug progresses ...

Rabies shots, contrary to the old legend, involve four needles, all of them in the arm. Pete's story notes the old rumor of 10 blunt needles in the belly, but those are campfire tales, meant to scare children. Easy needles.

Much easier, however, is to avoid the disease in the first place.

DON'T play with wild animals. A rule that makes sense at all times, but particularly with rabies on the prowl. Animals that seem "tame" may be hallucinating. Careful! The frothing mouth doesn't necessarily appear on all rabies cases, so even a normal-looking critter might be a walking infection factory. Peter's story notes that rabies was found in a deer, of all critters, so nothing is safe. Can you imagine a squirrel on the attack? Yikes.

DON'T pick up dead animals with bare hands. An infected tooth or claw can deliver a dose of rabies by a scratch just as quickly as a tooth attached to a frothy raccoon. Take note, hunters and trappers.

DON'T allow your pets to roam without rabies vaccinations. Every state requires dog vaccinations, and cats are next on the list. Massachusetts will probably require rabies shots for cats within another year or so. Beat the rush and get your cat vaccinated.

DON'T run a diner for raccoons. Cover your trash, and don't leave edibles around outside. Chances of a rabies incident rise, obviously, if raccoons frequent your yard.

DON'T freak out if bitten. Wash the wound carefully with hot soapy water, while using your other hand to call your doctor. Try to capture the critter, if you can do it safely. It will be tested for rabies before you get the unpleasant shots.

DON'T worry. Rabies has been a hazard for centuries, and humanity has survived the onslaught before.

But be forewarned. Raccoons will be eyed cautiously in New England once the rabies wave arrives, but all animals are suspect. Keep the phone number of your dog officer handy, (T: 640-4395, W: 658-7845) or call the cops. Police officers have a sure cure for individual cases of rabies infection: intercerebral infusion of lead oxide, in handy 9mm capsules.

--- Tackle Box ---

Today, Wednesday, is the kickoff of the Eastern Fishing & Outdoors Expo at the Worcester Centrum. A guaranteed interesting day. Runs all weekend, but so do other things.

There's a fishing derby on Forge Pond in Westford on Saturday, run by the Franco-American Club on Route 225. Fishing is 6:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., with prizes for the biggest bass, pickerel and perch! Jigging up perch is a specialty in some states.

Sunday has no fewer than three events planned. Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club will hold a 3-D archery shoot, at their Chandler Street digs; the Greater Lowell Fly Fishers will host their second ice fishing derby at Crystal (Freeman) Lake in North Chelmsford; and Lake Mascuppic in Dracut will see the Merrimack Valley Bass Masters' fishing derby. A difficult choice indeed.

The Westford Sportsmen's Club will hold their annual Flea Market and Swap Meet Sunday, February 16. Hours are 8 to 3, and the club can be found by taking West Street off Route 40 in Groton, near the Haystack observatory. Thanks, KD

As advertised here, SWEAT will hold their annual ice fishing derby on Ames Pond in Tewksbury on February 16, with the blessings of Met Life. We hope. Weak ice has cancelled the event for the last three years in a row.

Beckwith named MMA Director

Geoffrey Beckwith, a former state representative from Reading, is the new Executive Director of the Massachusetts Municipal Association.

Beckwith was selected January 31 by the governing board of the statewide organization of local governments.

Beckwith served in the legislature from 1985 until 1991, when he did not seek reelection.

While in the legislature, Beckwith was vice chair of the Government Regulations Committee and served on the Taxation, Natural Resources and Agriculture, and Housing and Urban Development Committees.

In 1990, Beckwith managed the campaign against Question 3, the state tax-cutting referendum that was rejected by the voters by 60-40 percent.

The municipal association opposed Question 3, working with the Campaign for Massachusetts' Future, the coalition whose efforts Beckwith coordinated.

Municipal Association President President Michael Hogan, the mayor of Marlborough, praised Beckwith as "a strong, effective leader and political strategist" who would "see that cities and towns are heard on Beacon Hill."

Beckwith fills the vacancy created when Sheila Cheimets left the MMA staff last month after 17 years, the last three as executive director.

Students will study Boston

by Arlene Surprenant

Third graders at the Woburn Street School in Wilmington will be learning more about Boston thanks to the efforts of four teachers. Sandra Arciero, Jane Welch, Ann Mulak, and Sandi Proia were dissatisfied with the current social studies unit on San Francisco so they set out to write a new unit focusing on Boston.

The women worked both together and individually on the project from September to December. They drew up the new unit after visiting Boston in their free time and taking pictures of familiar sites and scenes. The highlight of the unit is a trip to the city to reinforce what students have learned about Boston's government and geography. Students will also learn vocabulary, problem solving, and other skills.

Arciero recently told the school committee the teachers felt the unit on Boston would be more relevant to youngsters, many of whom have relatives working in the city.

Woburn Street School Principal Dolores Silva and committeeman Peggy Kane commended the teachers for their work. Kane suggested they copyright the unit for use in other communities. Silva said the teachers will pilot the unit this year and show it to other elementary teachers in the system at in-service workshops.

Pack 136 enjoys hay ride

Cubs from American Legion Cub Scout Pack 136 were treated to a hay ride Friday evening January 17. A total of sixty-six adults, Tiger Cubs, Wolves, Bears and Webelo Scouts met at Krochmal Farm in Tewksbury. Two large wagons were filled with excited boys, many of whom had never experienced this annual event. The wagons were pulled by two large horses across the fields and through the woods of the farm for about 40 minutes. Once, deep into the woods the boys found a warm bonfire awaiting their arrival. Upon reaching the bonfire, the boys prepared to cook hot dogs on a stick, thus completing one or more of the electives toward their advancement requirements along the scouting trail. Hot chocolate and marshmallows were also provided.

Fun was the theme of the evening. This was an opportunity for the boys as well as their leaders to brave the cold and recognize how life was experienced one hundred years ago, long before television and Nintendo !!

On the ride back, the comments from the cubs and the adult leaders were all positive.The trip was a tremendous success. The boys all wanted to sign up for next year's trip.

AIM Center news

On Tues, Feb. 11, we'll be having our annual Valentine's Day bash, with lots of food, fun and good fellowship. Join us for a really good time.

On Feb. 4, Shirley Grillo, the "star" of the "Painting with Shirley" Show on Cable Channel 6, was our guest. She demonstrated her painting technique, and the results, several lovely canvasses, were then raffled off.

Jan. 28 was birthday/bingo day. December and January birthdays were celebrated with a cake created for us by Irene Brennan of "Cakes by Irene," and with a rousing rendition of Happy Birthday, sung by our group of 70! Two newcomers, Carol Murray and Eileen attended this get-together. Eileen was one of the lucky winners at Bingo. We hope to see these new friends at many more meetings.

Newsy notes: Five week old Alesha Marie Benz (born Dec. 19) visited at the Jan. 28 meeting, accompanied by her mom, Lisa, a long time Aim member. We were all delighted to meet Alesha. Congratulations to Flo Maine on the birth of her first grandchild, Anna Rose Maine. A typical happy grandma, Flo has been proudly flashing photos of her beautiful granddaughter. Get well wishes to Joe Re, Bill Little and Jayne Carriker. We miss you all! A big "Welcome back" to Polly Kozar.

Valentine Social

Valentine Day, Friday February 14, the therapeutic social will be held in the Tewksbury Wilmington Elks Hall at 7 p.m. We have a waiting list for this social. Please call the center if you have signed up and now find you will not be able to attend. That will allow us to fill the vacancy with a senior waiting to attend. We will accept calls the morning of the social if for some reason you cannot attend such as illness. Late in the day would be difficult to fill your place. Any senior who fails to call and is not at the social will be responsible for the full cost of the social.

Whist Monday

The first whist of February will be held Monday in the function room of the Senior Center starting at 1 p.m. Don't forget to take a 25 cent chance on winning $5 as you enter the center. You will not only be contributing to the prizes for the whist games but for that 25 cents you may be going home with a $5 bill.

Thanks, Ann Fitzgerald

We thank Ann Fitzgerald, town nurse for being at the Senior Center last Tuesday to give the risk assessment test to seniors. She will try to set up a date in her schedule for tests in the future to be taken at the center. When the date are given to me, I will have them in the column.

Dr. Casey, too

We also thank Dr. Casey from the Burlington Podiatrist Associates who accepted my invitation to be at the center last Wednesday. He was able to treat six seniors with problems of the feet. He will be coming to the Center on a monthly visit. The seniors he treated last week liked him very much.

Aged parents

We have had many seniors who are caring for aged parents asking how and where they can have their parent cared for while they are on a vacation or called away in an emergency. If you are in this category the answer is: most nursing homes have respite care rooms usually up to a three week stay. To mention some I have made referrals to: Winchester Nursing Center 223 Swanton Street; Woburn Nursing Center 18 Frances Street; Aberjona Nursing Center, 184 Swanton Street, Winchester; the Blair House in Tewksbury along with nursing homes in Reading, Stoneham and Billerica. They are all listed in the telephone book. Prices may vary. In most cases the care is the same, private and semi private rooms, social activities, nutritious meals, 24 hour health care supervision, therapy and nursing care.

Registry of Motor Vehicles

I have been notified by the Registry of Motor Vehicles, they now have a director of elder affairs to represent the elderly. Many changes have been implemented by the registry that will result in a positive impact on the older driver. If an older driver has a problem with applying for a drivers license, or signs not visible enough to see or large enough to read, they will be there to help to make the corrections. If you have questions concerning your safety driving on the highways in Massachusetts, contact Ms. Anapolle 617-727-3865.

Income tax assistance

Remember we have a certified income tax preparer at the center on appointment only every Monday accept February 17 until the end of March. Call the center for an appointment if you wish Mr. Hughes to complete your tax forms for you. The IRS is trying to stop processing forms from people who don't have to file and that is thousands of senior citizens. If your income is $6400 or less, you are 65 or older and single you do not have to file. If you are 65 and older, married filing jointly the level is $11,300. Now if you have worked and did not go over these figures but had income tax taken from your check that you would like refunded, the IRS is considering in 1992 to have a simple form made that you will only have to sign and return to get the refund. But check with the IRS to make sure the form can be obtained. Or you will have to make out your tax to get the refund.

Mystery Theatre

The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce is planning a Mystery Theatre night on Saturday, Feb. 8. It will be held in the Casa di Fior. The price of tickets is $30, but the senior citizen price is $22. Any senior wishing to attend show and dinner can pick up a ticket at the center. If you are paying by check make the check out to the Chamber of Commerce.

Nutrition lecture

A Nutrition Lecture, sponsored jointly by the Wilmington Board of Health, the American Heart Association's Lowell Affiliate will be offered Wed., Feb. 12, 1 p.m. in the Town Hall gym.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Robert Nicolosi, professor of Nutrition at UMass. Lowell who will address those in attendance, on "Heart Healthy Eating and Nutrition; Lowering Your Cholesterol." The public is invited.

Mailing made easy

The problem of the drive-up mailbox has been solved in Wilmington. In the past, drive-up boxes had been located at curbside, giving motorists problems with the approach. With the box on the right side of the street, people would either hit the box with the car or miss it with their letters. Postmaster Jake Quinn searched for an appropriate location, and on Tuesday a box was installed in front of the old Whitefield School. Because it is on a one-way driveway, motorists can approach with the box on the left side of the car. Charlie Boncore and Lou Mancini of the Woburn postal facility installed the box.

Fear of Fear: Agoraphobia

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

Fear is a very good thing when people use it as a caution against engaging in dangerous acts, but it can be debilitating to some people that have seen it take over their lives.

These people suffer from Agoraphobia or Panic Disorder.

Dr. Carolyn Keefe, a licensed social worker and doctor of Education and Psychology notes that the name Agoraphobia is a kind of misnomer. It comes from the Greek meaning fear of open places, it has developed into the fear of fear itself.

She notes that having a panic attack is fairly common in the general population. "The person who develops the disorder gets very frightened by it."

Dr. Keefe added, "That person becomes very vigilant and anticipates a second attack."

According to Keefe, the anticipation eventually becomes a self-fulfilling prophesy as the added stress could bring on another attack.

Keefe is a person who knows quite a bit about the subject. For the past five years she has headed the Behavioral Medicine Program at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham and has been studying behavioral problems since her introduction to it at Massachusetts General Hospital's Psychosomatic and Hypnosis Unit. She did her pre- and post-doctoral training in the unit.

A native of New York state, Keefe is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst and received her Masters and Doctorate from Boston University.

She speaks well of the Mass. General unit describing it as one of the first places in this area to publicize the disease. This publicity took place about 10 years ago, when Dr. David Sheehan's book "The Anxiety Disease" was first published.

"This was the first book that alerted people that this was a real thing they had. Not just something in their head," Keefe said.

She started her career as a social worker with children. "I became interested in behavioral therapy when I went for my Doctorate. I was exposed to the research on anxiety and became excited."

According to Keefe, the research was showing that some of the long-term programs were not very successful. However, not only was the Mass. General program more effective it was also shorter in time commitment.

It was this training that Keefe brought to New England Memorial Hospital where the program focuses on adults.

The program became so successful that the Hospital has added three more members to the department in the last three years. They are Dr. Laurie Livingston Ed.D., Dr. Robert Miller Ph.D., and Dr. Susan Jacobs Ph.D.

According to Keefe, the disorder starts with people in the 20's. However, many are not seen for the proper treatment until they are 30-years-old.

A person in the program now, was 70-years-old before receiving proper treatment.

"We seem to be getting a lot more referrals of elderly people," Keefe said.

She also noted that the ratio is two to one favoring female clients over males.

Keefe said the reason for that statistic is not known.

Another statistic that Keefe uses, reveals that only about 25 percent of the people with Panic Disorders get the proper treatment.

"A lot of people we see go to emergency rooms before we get to see them," Keefe explained.

She noted that due to the physical symptoms that sometimes accompany the disorder, people will go from doctor to doctor and emergency room to emergency room before a properly trained physician or other medical person recognizes the true reason for the symptoms.

DR. CAROLYN KEEFE IS passing on the word that fear can be controlled and not be controlling. She is the head of a team of four doctors that make-up the New England Memorial Hospital's Behavioral Medicine Program. (Don Young photo)

ANTHONY MANCONI

I love to travel to foreign lands, especially Brooklyn, New York. Last summer I said to a cabbie, "333 Third Avenue, please." He turned to me and asked, "Do youse means tree hunret and thoity tree Thoid Avenuc?" Then he added, "You people from Boston sure moider the mudder tung!" Gee, I hope my former English teacher, Miss Ellison, didn't read that chip.

Many people want to know the secret of my happy married life. It's directly attributable to our philosophy, "Don't ever, ever go to bed mad. Stay up and fight." Kathy and I first met in the revolving doors at Filene's and we've been going around and around ever since. Two weeks later we met again at a Filene's Basement sale. She poked me in the ribs and told me to get the heck out of her way. She was buying pantyhose to wear around the house. Her size would just about fit around the house.

I'll bet many readers think it's awful the way I talk about my wife - well - she doesn't do too bad herself. We believe in the Buddy Hackett system, "Say what you have to say and then forget

Shriners offers advice on avoiding burns

Burns are a leading cause of accidental death in children under 14 years of age, with the highest single risk group being children under two. But kids are not the only ones at risk. More than two million people are burned annually -- children and adults.

Shriners are particularly interested in saving children from burn injuries. That's why each year Shriners join the Shriners Burns Institutes and the United States Congress observing National Burn Awareness Week. This year, Burn Awareness Week is being recognized on February 2-8.

"Since the Shriners opened the first Shriners Burns Institute in the early 1960's, we've been committed to helping children with severe burn injuries," said the Shrine's highest ranking official, Imperial Potentate John W. Dean, III. "Naturally, we'd like to see less kids being treated at our hospitals, so burn prevention is the key."

In recognition of the urgent need to educate the public about burn prevention and fire safety, the Shriners Burns Institutes and the Shrine of North America offer these tips to help you and your family stay healthy and safe from burns:

•It takes only five seconds to receive a serious scald burn if your water heater is set at 140° F.

•Keep your water heater set no higher than 130° F. and always check the temperature of the water before placing your child in the bathtub.

•When cooking, keep young children away from hot surfaces, hot liquids and other kitchen hazards. Establish a "safe area" in the kitchen where children can play -- away from risk but under supervision.

•Develop a home fire escape plan, and have your entire family practice getting out of the house through various exits.

•Install smoke detectors. Most home fires occur at night when people are sleeping, and it is vital to have at least one smoke detector near the bedroom area to wake you in case of fire. Change the batteries at least once a year.

•More than 1,000 children were burned last year due to hot foods and liquids heated in a microwave oven. Hot steam escaping from a container can cause a scald burn, so be careful when removing coverings or lids from microwaved food. Puncture plastic wrap before heating foods in the microwave.

The three Shriners Burns Institutes and the 19 orthopedic Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children provide orthopedic and burn medical care absolutely free of charge to children up to their 18th birthday. The hospitals were founded by the Shrine of North America, an international fraternal organization with approximately 750,000 members.

Kennedy Library to sponsor educational puppet show

On February 8 at 10:30 a.m. the Kennedy Library "Children's Hour" will present You and Me Puppets with Judith O'Hare who is well known in this area. This free performance, entitled "Memories of a Chinese Grandmother," is both entertaining and educational for audiences ages four through adult.

Judith O'Hare, a member of the Puppeteers of America and president of the Boston Area Guild of Puppetry, created You and Me Puppets in 1977 to engage children in theater and puppetry. With this goal in mind, members of the JFK Library Corps, a group of Boston area students who volunteer their time to public service projects, will join Ms. O'Hare in presenting the performance.

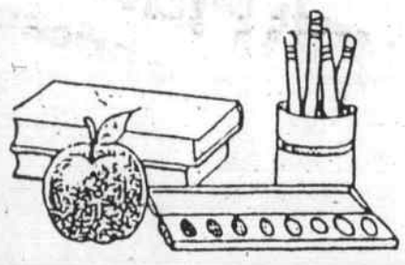

"Memories of a Chinese Grandmother" is an original blend of puppetry and traditional Chinese folktales designed to heighten cultural awareness and sensitivity during the month that celebrates Chinese New Year. Corps members will manipulate shadow and life-sized puppets, as well as a 15' dragon to portray Chinese cultural traditions.

About the Towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 10-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East dea lines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

SUBURBAN ADVENTURE CLUB - "Our mailing list is over 300 and we have 100 members," says Reading's Meg Bond, founder of the Suburban Adventure Club.

In celebration of its second birthday, the club will hold a party on February 29th at the Masonic Temple in Melrose, from 8 p.m. until midnight, with DJ and dancing, cash bar, door prizes, birthday gifts, food, games, and more.

In January alone, club members met or made plans for volleyball, pizza, cross-country and downhill skiing, an evening at a mystery cafe, a trip to the Omni Theater, a sleigh ride, dance theater, a get-away weekend, and that all important first Tuesday of every month, an evening of "R&R."

According to Bond, the club is for singles and couples searching for fun and friendship, and even includes some single parents who bring their kids. Current membership includes a balance of men and women, ages 21 to their late 30's.

For more information, write to Meg Bond, Suburban Adventure Club, P.O. Box 862, Reading, MA 01867 or phone (617) 483-3747.

WAKEFIELD - Former Wakefield resident Lisa Anne Barrett and Galvin Junior High student Amy Kumpel performed throughout the recent holiday season in the Huntington Theatre Company's production of "A Christmas Carol."

Barrett, a 1983 graduate of Wakefield High, has also appeared in the North Shore Music Theatre's "My Fair Lady" and several other productions.

Twelve-year-old Kumpel appeared for 23 days in all 35 Wilbur Theatre performances of "A Christmas Carol." A news reporter for WBZ Radio's Kid Company, she was one of the first people to ever interview U.S. Supreme Court Justice David Souter when he was first appointed to the bench.

WILMINGTON - Wilmington officials recently received word that the town has been bypassed for a Small Cities Grant which would have gone toward job training and counseling for the unemployed, home improvements for those on the lower end of the income scale and a recreational area by Silver Lake.

Of more than $20 million available to 90 towns and cities, only 45 communities received some or all of the funds they requested. According to the Wilmington edition of the "Town Crier," Wilmington Town Manager Jeff Hull was told the proposal was very competitive and lost by only "a couple of tenths of a point."

Part of the reason Wilmington lost, according to Hull, was that officials felt Wilmington doesn't have enough low-to-moderate-income households and its unemployment figure wasn't as low as [illegible] in other towns.

"I find it interesting," says Hull in the "Crier," "that they didn't feel our need was great enough."

WINCHESTER - William J. Bond, Winchester High Class of '59, has written "Beat the Clock," a feature article for "Small Business Opportunities" magazine.

The article, which appeared in January, details the techniques necessary to compete in business in the 1990s. A college professor and regular guest on radio and television, Bond runs seminars on business and career skills.

SENIOR CENTER - Beginning on January 1st, Wilmington seniors have been invited to sign their names in the book on their Senior Center's counter, a book devoted to much hoped for, potential volunteers, in heavy demand because of budget cuts.

Shriners offers advice on avoiding burns

Burns are a leading cause of accidental death in children under 14 years of age, with the highest single risk group being children under two. But kids are not the only ones at risk. More than two million people are burned annually -- children and adults.

Shriners are particularly interested in saving children from burn injuries. That's why each year Shriners join the Shriners Burns Institutes and the United States Congress observing National Burn Awareness Week. This year, Burn Awareness Week is being recognized on February 2-8.

"Since the Shriners opened the first Shriners Burns Institute in the early 1960's, we've been committed to helping children with severe burn injuries," said the Shrine's highest ranking official, Imperial Potentate John W. Dean, III. "Naturally, we'd like to see less kids being treated at our hospitals, so burn prevention is the key."

In recognition of the urgent need to educate the public about burn prevention and fire safety, the Shriners Burns Institutes and the Shrine of North America offer these tips to help you and your family stay healthy and safe from burns:

•It takes only five seconds to receive a serious scald burn if your water heater is set at 140° F.

•Keep your water heater set no higher than 130° F. and always check the temperature of the water before placing your child in the bathtub.

•When cooking, keep young children away from hot surfaces, hot liquids and other kitchen hazards. Establish a "safe area" in the kitchen where children can play -- away from risk but under supervision.

•Develop a home fire escape plan, and have your entire family practice getting out of the house through various exits.

•Install smoke detectors. Most home fires occur at night when people are sleeping, and it is vital to have at least one smoke detector near the bedroom area to wake you in case of fire. Change the batteries at least once a year.

•More than 1,000 children were burned last year due to hot foods and liquids heated in a microwave oven. Hot steam escaping from a container can cause a scald burn, so be careful when removing coverings or lids from microwaved food. Puncture plastic wrap before heating foods in the microwave.

The three Shriners Burns Institutes and the 19 orthopedic Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children provide orthopedic and burn medical care absolutely free of charge to children up to their 18th birthday. The hospitals were founded by the Shrine of North America, an international fraternal organization with approximately 750,000 members.

SUBURBAN ADVENTURE CLUB - "Our mailing list is over 300 and we have 100 members," says Reading's Meg Bond, founder of the Suburban Adventure Club.

In celebration of its second birthday, the club will hold a party on February 29th at the Masonic Temple in Melrose, from 8 p.m. until midnight, with DJ and dancing, cash bar, door prizes, birthday gifts, food, games, and more.

In January alone, club members met or made plans for volleyball, pizza, cross-country and downhill skiing, an evening at a mystery cafe, a trip to the Omni Theater, a sleigh ride, dance theater, a get-away weekend, and that all important first Tuesday of every month, an evening of "R&R."

According to Bond, the club is for singles and couples searching for fun and friendship, and even includes some single parents who bring their kids. Current membership includes a balance of men and women, ages 21 to their late 30's.

For more information, write to Meg Bond, Suburban Adventure Club, P.O. Box 862, Reading, MA 01867 or phone (617) 483-3747.

WAKEFIELD - Former Wakefield resident Lisa Anne Barrett and Galvin Junior High student Amy Kumpel performed throughout the recent holiday season in the Huntington Theatre Company's production of "A Christmas Carol."

Barrett, a 1983 graduate of Wakefield High, has also appeared in the North Shore Music Theatre's "My Fair Lady" and several other productions.

Twelve-year-old Kumpel appeared for 23 days in all 35 Wilbur Theatre performances of "A Christmas Carol." A news reporter for WBZ Radio's Kid Company, she was one of the first people to ever interview U.S. Supreme Court Justice David Souter when he was first appointed to the bench.

WILMINGTON - Wilmington officials recently received word that the town has been bypassed for a Small Cities Grant which would have gone toward job training and counseling for the unemployed, home improvements for those on the lower end of the income scale and a recreational area by Silver Lake.

Of more than $20 million available to 90 towns and cities, only 45 communities received some or all of the funds they requested. According to the Wilmington edition of the "Town Crier," Wilmington Town Manager Jeff Hull was told the proposal was very competitive and lost by only "a couple of tenths of a point."

Part of the reason Wilmington lost, according to Hull, was that officials felt Wilmington doesn't have enough low-to-moderate-income households and its unemployment figure wasn't as low as [illegible] in other towns.

"I find it interesting," says Hull in the "Crier," "that they didn't feel our need was great enough."

WINCHESTER - William J. Bond, Winchester High Class of '59, has written "Beat the Clock," a feature article for "Small Business Opportunities" magazine.

The article, which appeared in January, details the techniques necessary to compete in business in the 1990s. A college professor and regular guest on radio and television, Bond runs seminars on business and career skills.

SENIOR CENTER - Beginning on January 1st, Wilmington seniors have been invited to sign their names in the book on their Senior Center's counter, a book devoted to much hoped for, potential volunteers, in heavy demand because of budget cuts.

Agoraphobia

From S-1

Keefe noted that because of the physical symptoms that are manifested, a client that comes for treatment on his or her own is asked if they have had a recent physical exam. If the answer is no, then one is ordered by Keefe or the other members of her team.

Those physical symptoms take the form of shaky, sweaty palms, loss of breath, a frequent panic feeling that makes the patient feel if they will die.

Keefe said that the disorder first comes on due any one of several stress filled situations such as ill-health, family illness, a death in the family or a symbolic loss, such as the loss of a job.

"We don't know all the reasons it starts," Keefe admits.

Because of the number of known reasons, Keefe notes that a first time evaluation of the client includes talking with them about the first experience they had with an attack.

According to Keefe's figures, about 1/3 of the people that develop Panic Disorders go on to develop Agoraphobia.

As an example, Keefe notes that a person may have a frightening experience on a highway. As a result they will start to avoid the use of highways.

If they start using country roads instead they may develop a fear of breaking down alone. In a worst case scenario, the person could eventually become so constricted in their lifestyle that they eventually become afraid to leave their house.

The fact is that the person is not afraid of the highway incident that started the disorder. Keefe explains they fear the panic that went along with the experience.

Keefe noted that the person who regresses to the point where their life becomes completely closed is a small minority.

"We tend to see more people who are restricted in certain areas. The ones that are avoiding places where they think they can't get help," Keefe said.

She explained that Anxiety Disorders are a broad category that breaks into several sub-disorders. These sub-disorders could be related to Panic Disorder or might actually be manifestations of a simple phobia.

Keefe notes that some of the simple phobias could elevate to the level of a panic disorder. However, for the most part the simple phobias - such as: fear of being in a tunnel, going over a bridge or being bit by a dog - usually follow a bad experience and are easier to treat.

The treatment for the Panic Disorders is a lot different and can take varying forms which last varying amounts of time.

Keefe notes that the treatment starts out with a consultation and evaluation process.

Among the issues such as a physical and the first experience, the evaluation also seeks to find out what kind of a support group the patient has among friends and family.

Keefe explains that the support is really needed when the client goes into the self-management phase of the program.

Treatment consists of a 13-session group therapy program or private sessions or possibly a combination of the two.

Keefe said that studies on the causes are continuing and some schools of thought are centering around the possibility that the disorders could be genetic in make-up.

She noted that in some families their is a direct relationship or a skipped generation between two people that have had the disease.

According to Keefe, this in itself forms another type of stress. "The people worry if I have it and my mother had it will my kids have it too."

She said that her first job is to try to alleviate this fear and tell the patients it is not necessarily passed on to the children.

Ironically, Keefe believes that society in the past has kept the number of male patients suffering from the disease down.

She said that society requires the male to go out and face the world by working and thus confronting the disease.

However, this confrontation may have taken the form of alcoholism as the substance was used to fight the fears.

Keefe said that treatment depends on the individual and could take the form of a cognitive/behavioral treatment in which an education program is tied in with helping the person deal with their fears. In this case, Keefe or her team members teach certain exercises to the client that will help them cope with the anxiety.

For the more advanced cases their are a number of medicines that are available. These are also used in conjunction with the behavioral methods.

For more information Keefe invites calls to her office at (617) 979-7025. A 13 week seminar is forming for the month of February and more information can be gathered by calling the same number.

Caring is a Family Tradition. Yours and Ours.

Choosing the right Nursing Home.

Choosing a quality Nursing Home is never easy. It's even more difficult to find one that meets the patient's needs as well as your own expectations. There are so many factors to consider: location and reputation, ambiance and amenities. Most importantly of all, the quality of care and level of services.

It's a big decision don't rush.

Take your time and consider all the different factors carefully. Don't settle on the nearest place or decide simply on the lowest price. There is more to the selection of a nursing home than just price. Sometimes only a few more dollars a day separates an outstanding facility from a mediocre one. Don't make a hasty decision because it is a big decision.

Consider Greenview Manor in Wakefield and what it has to offer. It is a facility that stands out from all the rest, and has all the things you are looking for.

A Tradition of Caring.

Greenview Manor is owned and operated by the Bane family. A family with over 30 years of experience and expertise in providing care and services to the elderly.

Greenview Manor has recently been up-graded and completely refurbished. A variety of comfortable, well-appointed accommodations await your selection and preference. Suites, deluxe semi-private rooms and very affordable standard units. Besides the attractive decor and design, there is something else very distinctive about Greenview Manor. The Bane family's personal commitment to high quality nursing care and attentive service motivates every department, every shift.

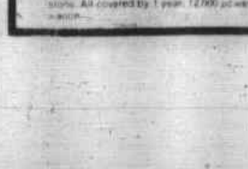

You will find Greenview Manor has all the things you want and look for in a Nursing Home: quality care, friendly service, comfortable accommodations and affordable rates. One more important point. Caring is a family tradition, yours and ours.

MEET ELEANOR ROOSEVELT AT BUNKER HILL

The Fenway Middle College High School at Bunker Hill Community College is sponsoring the theatre production of "Meet Eleanor Roosevelt; Wife, Mother and First Lady" in the BHCC Auditorium on Tuesday, Feb. 24 at 11:15 a.m.

Co-author and actress Elena Dodd portrays Mrs. Roosevelt in a direct, personal "visit" with the audience. With humor, reminiscences, and a frank look at some of the struggles of her life, Mrs. Roosevelt shares her journey toward becoming a fulfilled and adventurous person.

The production is offered free to the community by Streetfeet Workshops, under a grant from the Polaroid Foundation.

The production covers events of the four decades of Eleanor's marriage to Franklin Delano Roosevelt, 1904-1945, including early years in Washington before women were granted the right to vote, life during the Depression, and travels to military bases in the South Pacific during World War II.

Directed by co-author Josephine Lane, the piece is based on Eleanor Roosevelt's autobiography, research at the Roosevelt estate in Hyde Park, New York under a grant from the American Association of University Women, and biographical writings by Joseph Lash.

SOUTH AFRICAN ARTIST DISPLAY AT MERRIMACK

Merrimack ARTS is delighted to present an exhibition by South Africa artist, Paul Stopforth, entitled "African Herbs," which opened in the McQuade Library Art Gallery at Merrimack College, on Sunday, February 2. The exhibition runs through March 5.

For many years Paul Stopforth's work was linked to the struggle against apartheid in his homeland, South Africa.

His latest exhibition, however, moves away from the politicized art tradition. With "African Herbs," the threads of influence are the beadwork of the Ndebele people, in addition to the songlines of the Australian Aborigines and the writings of the Buddhist teacher, Chogyam Trungpa.

Stopforth's images have an iconographic quality containing a sense of the sacred, which suggests the possibility of seeing an illuminated world.

For further information contact Orla Kennedy, Merrimack ARTS, (508) 837-5197.

FOR THE ELDER IN YOUR FAMILY

The changes brought about by aging affect more than just the elderly individual. All the people who love and care for older people are impacted.

"You and Your Aging Relative," a support group sponsored by Winchester Hospital's Social Service Department discusses the role of the caregiver and the resources available to assist families.

This group meets on February 6th, from 7 to 9 p.m. at 7 McKay Ave. in Winchester, and continues to meet the first Thursday of every month. It also meets from 7 to 9 p.m. on February 20th at Winchester Nursing Home and continues to meet at the nursing home the third Thursday of each months. There is no fee. For more information, call (617) 756-2633.

SIBLING CLASS HELPS CHILDREN ADJUST

Adjusting to a new addition to the family can be difficult for everyone, especially an older child who may feel that a new baby means he or she is no longer important. Helping youngsters understand about a new baby is important to ensure family harmony.

To help youngsters age 2 1/2 to 10 years who will soon have a new brother or sister, a special program, "On Being a Sibling," will be held at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital on Thursday, February 20. The program will be held from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m. in the Perkins Lecture Hall, 585 Lebanon Street in Melrose.

Families are encouraged to attend together to learn more about helping youngsters adjust to a newborn in the home. The program provides helpful insights and tips on minimizing sibling rivalry, including how to talk to your child before and after the birth of a new baby. Instructors speak directly with each child about what newborns can do and how they need the help of their brother or sister as well as their parents. Children will make a paper doll to diaper as a hands-on experience.

Registration is required for "On Being A Sibling." To register or for more information, call the [illegible] Department at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, (617) 979-3[illegible] or (617) 979-3845.

In addition, visitors to the museum can hear, in "The Office of the President, exhibit, a tape recorded conversation between President Kennedy and Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett, about the enrollment of James Meredith at the University of Mississippi.

Films will be shown at 2 p.m. and are included in the general admission to the museum. The John F. Kennedy Library and Museum is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Agoraphobia

From S-1

Keefe noted that because of the physical symptoms that are manifested, a client that comes for treatment on his or her own is asked if they have had a recent physical exam. If the answer is no, then one is ordered by Keefe or the other members of her team.

Those physical symptoms take the form of shaky, sweaty palms, loss of breath, a frequent panic feeling that makes the patient feel if they will die.

Keefe said that the disorder first comes on due any one of several stress filled situations such as ill-health, family illness, a death in the family or a symbolic loss, such as the loss of a job.

"We don't know all the reasons it starts," Keefe admits.

Because of the number of known reasons, Keefe notes that a first time evaluation of the client includes talking with them about the first experience they had with an attack.

According to Keefe's figures, about 1/3 of the people that develop Panic Disorders go on to develop Agoraphobia.

As an example, Keefe notes that a person may have a frightening experience on a highway. As a result they will start to avoid the use of highways.

If they start using country roads instead they may develop a fear of breaking down alone. In a worst case scenario, the person could eventually become so constricted in their lifestyle that they eventually become afraid to leave their house.

The fact is that the person is not afraid of the highway incident that started the disorder. Keefe explains they fear the panic that went along with the experience.

Keefe noted that the person who regresses to the point where their life becomes completely closed is a small minority.

"We tend to see more people who are restricted in certain areas. The ones that are avoiding places where they think they can't get help," Keefe said.

She explained that Anxiety Disorders are a broad category that breaks into several sub-disorders. These sub-disorders could be related to Panic Disorder or might actually be manifestations of a simple phobia.

Keefe notes that some of the simple phobias could elevate to the level of a panic disorder. However, for the most part the simple phobias - such as: fear of being in a tunnel, going over a bridge or being bit by a dog - usually follow a bad experience and are easier to treat.

The treatment for the Panic Disorders is a lot different and can take varying forms which last varying amounts of time.

Keefe notes that the treatment starts out with a consultation and evaluation process.

Among the issues such as a physical and the first experience, the evaluation also seeks to find out what kind of a support group the patient has among friends and family.

Keefe explains that the support is really needed when the client goes into the self-management phase of the program.

Treatment consists of a 13-session group therapy program or, private sessions or possibly a combination of the two.

Keefe said that studies on the causes are continuing and some schools of thought are centering around the possibility that the disorders could be genetic in make-up.

She noted that in some families their is a direct relationship or a skipped generation between two people that have had the disease.

According to Keefe, this in itself forms another type of stress. "The people worry if I have it and my mother had it will my kids have it too."

She said that her first job is to try to alleviate this fear and tell the patients it is not necessarily passed on to the children.

Ironically, Keefe believes that society in the past has kept the number of male patients suffering from the disease down.

She said that society requires the male to go out and face the world by working and thus confronting the disease.

However, this confrontation may have taken the form of alcoholism as the substance was used to fight the fears.

Keefe said that treatment depends on the individual and could take the form of a cognitive/behavioral treatment in which an education program is tied in with helping the person deal with their fears. In this case, Keefe or her team members teach certain exercises to the client that will help them cope with the anxiety.

For the more advanced cases their are a number of medicines that are available. These are also used in conjunction with the behavioral methods.

For more information Keefe invites calls to her office at (617) 979-7025. A 13 week seminar is forming for the month of February and more information can be gathered by calling the same number.

Caring is a Family Tradition. Yours and Ours.

Choosing the right Nursing Home.

Choosing a quality Nursing Home is never easy. It's even more difficult to find one that meets the patient's needs as well as your own expectations. There are so many factors to consider: location and reputation, ambiance and amenities. Most importantly of all, the quality of care and level of services.

It's a big decision don't rush.

Take your time and consider all the different factors carefully. Don't settle on the nearest place or decide simply on the lowest price. There is more to the selection of a nursing home than just price. Sometimes only a few more dollars a day separates an outstanding facility from a mediocre one. Don't make a hasty decision because it is a big decision.

Consider Greenview Manor in Wakefield and what it has to offer. It is a facility that stands out from all the rest, and has all the things you are looking for.

A Tradition of Caring.

Greenview Manor is owned and operated by the Bane family. A family with over 30 years of experience and expertise in providing care and services to the elderly.

Greenview Manor has recently been up-graded and completely refurbished. A variety of comfortable, well-appointed accommodations await your selection and preference. Suites, deluxe semi-private rooms and very affordable standard units. Besides the attractive decor and design, there is something else very distinctive about Greenview Manor. The Bane family's personal commitment to high quality nursing care and attentive service motivates every department, every shift.

You will find Greenview Manor has all the things you want and look for in a Nursing Home: quality care, friendly service, comfortable accommodations and affordable rates. One more important point. Caring is a family tradition, yours and ours.

MEET ELEANOR ROOSEVELT AT BUNKER HILL

The Fenway Middle College High School at Bunker Hill Community College is sponsoring the theatre production of "Meet Eleanor Roosevelt; Wife, Mother and First Lady" in the BHCC Auditorium on Tuesday, Feb. 24 at 11:15 a.m.

Co-author and actress Elena Dodd portrays Mrs. Roosevelt in a direct, personal "visit" with the audience. With humor, reminiscences, and a frank look at some of the struggles of her life, Mrs. Roosevelt shares her journey toward becoming a fulfilled and adventurous person.

The production is offered free to the community by Streetfeet Workshops, under a grant from the Polaroid Foundation.

The production covers events of the four decades of Eleanor's marriage to Franklin Delano Roosevelt, 1904-1945, including early years in Washington before women were granted the right to vote, life during the Depression, and travels to military bases in the South Pacific during World War II.

Directed by co-author Josephine Lane, the piece is based on Eleanor Roosevelt's autobiography, research at the Roosevelt estate in Hyde Park, New York under a grant from the American Association of University Women, and biographical writings by Joseph Lash.

Contact Linda Nathan, (617) 242-9095, for more information.

SOUTH AFRICAN ARTIST DISPLAY AT MERRIMACK

Merrimack ARTS is delighted to present an exhibition by South Africa artist, Paul Stopforth, entitled "African Herbs," which opened in the McQuade Library Art Gallery at Merrimack College, on Sunday, February 2. The exhibition runs through March 5.

For many years Paul Stopforth's work was linked to the struggle against apartheid in his homeland, South Africa.

His latest exhibition, however, moves away from the politicized art tradition. With "African Herbs," the threads of influence are the beadwork of the Ndebele people, in addition to the songlines of the Australian Aborigines and the writings of the Buddhist teacher, Chogyam Trungpa.

Stopforth's images have an iconographic quality containing a sense of the sacred, which suggests the possibility of seeing an illuminated world.

For further information contact Orla Kennedy, Merrimack ARTS, (508) 837-5197.

FOR THE ELDER IN YOUR FAMILY

The changes brought about by aging affect more than just the elderly individual. All the people who love and care for older people are impacted.

"You and Your Aging Relative," a support group sponsored by Winchester Hospital's Social Service Department discusses the role of the caregiver and the resources available to assist families.

This group meets on February 6th, from 7 to 9 p.m. at 7 McKay Ave. in Winchester, and continues to meet the first Thursday of every month. It also meets from 7 to 9 p.m. on February 20th at Winchester Nursing Home and continues to meet at the nursing home the third Thursday of each months. There is no fee. For more information, call (617) 756-2633.

SIBLING CLASS HELPS CHILDREN ADJUST

Adjusting to a new addition to the family can be difficult for everyone, especially an older child who may feel that a new baby means he or she is no longer important. Helping youngsters understand about a new baby is important to ensure family harmony.

To help youngsters age 2 1/2 to 10 years who will soon have a new brother or sister, a special program, "On Being a Sibling," will be held at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital on Thursday, February 20. The program will be held from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m. in the Perkins Lecture Hall, 585 Lebanon Street in Melrose.

Families are encouraged to attend together to learn more about helping youngsters adjust to a newborn in the home. The program provides helpful insights and tips on minimizing sibling rivalry, including how to talk to your child before and after the birth of a new baby. Instructors speak directly with each child about what newborns can do and how they need the help of their brother or sister as well as their parents. Children will make a paper doll to diaper as a hands-on experience.

Registration is required for "On Being A Sibling." To register or for more information, call the Center for Education Department at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, (617) 979-3408 or (617) 979-3515.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—At least 16 local firms have shown interest in a training-retraining program to be held at Wilmington High School at the end of this month.

Sponsored by the Business-School Partnership, the courses offered include a Lotus 1-2-3 course using IBM computers, and a writing skills - public speaking class.

The computer course is designed for experienced and inexperienced trainees and will be limited to 14 students, with a second class added if numbers warrant. High school math computer teacher Kathleen Bell will run the eight-week class and English instructor Lillian Thuline will lead the writing skills course.

The program is not expected to make or lose money - it is being launched as a cooperative venture, according to Al Fessenden at the high school, a way "to give something back to business."

No expenses will be incurred by the school department - all course materials will be paid for by the partnership and returned to the school. The cost to each student for each class will be $100.

—Woburn's DARE program recently received a check for $5,000 in memory of Robert Logue, a therapist for more than 25 years in the field of chemical dependency, and former president of the Woburn Alcohol Drug Community Assistance Program.

Logue believed the lower the grade in which substance abuse education begins, the more likely it will be effective for the lifetime of the recipient - the money will be spent on drug education in the Woburn schools.

—The average of Tewksbury Memorial High School student SAT scores declined by 32 points between 1990 and 1991; and in 1991, students scored 27 points below the national average on the test.

One reason given for the decline is that more students are taking the test, including those who do not necessarily plan to go to college. In 1990, for example, 68 percent of TMHS students took the SAT while nationally, 42 percent took it. In 1991, the number of Tewksbury students taking the test increased.

—Stoneham's South School fourth graders were recently visited by Elementary Health Coordinator Carolyn Harrington, Middlesex County American Lung Association Program Director David Ales, and Stoneham High peer leaders Joan Zaya, Kerry O'Brien, Erin Walsh, Carrie Rivera, and Heather Edgecomb.

Ales urged each student to become a member of the smokeless class of 2000; and the peer leaders involved the students in role-playing situations designed to help them say no to trouble revolving around drugs, alcohol and peer pressure.

—The Reading Boosters Organization is planning a "gigantic" Craft Fair to be held at the Reading High School Field House on Saturday, April 4th from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The 101 craft booths are available for $35 each or $30 each for two to the same exhibitor. Electricity for each booth is $5 additional.

The Boosters themselves will run a food pavilion, raffle table and garden center. The fair will be well advertised and is expected to be extremely well attended. For more information, call Regina Murphy at (617) 944-1398 after 6 p.m. or Pat Black at (617)944-5420.

Song of The Sea at Salem museum

Men at sea in the Age of Sail sang songs for a variety of reasons - to accompany work, to ward off loneliness, to praise their God. But a very special kind of song was the "Forebitter," sung for sheer entertainment, and presented on Sunday, February 9 at 3 p.m. at the Peabody Museum of Salem. The exciting male quartet, Forebitter, is based at Mystic Seaport and accompany the rich vocal harmonies with a wealth of historical background. They will perform at the Sunday Family Concert, one of a series of monthly concerts in East India Marine Hall for which there is no charge beyond admission. For information about the program, call (508) 745-1876.

"LOVE LETTERS" RETURN TO WILBUR

A.R. Gurney's enormously successful Broadway and international hit, "Love Letters" is returning in time for Valentine's Day to the Wilbur Theatre beginning Tuesday, February 11. The play, which follows a couple's relationship through the humorous and touching letters they have exchanged since childhood, delighted Boston audiences when it was first presented at the Wilbur Theatre two years ago. John Tillinger who staged the Broadway production will direct this Boston engagement.

Starring in the show's first week (February 11-16) are Lauren Bacall and Richard Kiley. Taking over the roles of Melissa Gardner and Andrew Makepeace Ladd in its second week (February 18-23) are Jane Curtin and Edward Herrmann.

Screen legend Lauren Bacall debuted in "To Have and Have Not" and became an immediate hit in such film noir classics as "The Big Sleep" and "Key Largo." On Broadway, she received Tony Awards for Best Actress for "Applause" and "Woman of the Year."

Richard Kiley, the Tony Award Winning original star of "Man of La Mancha," makes a welcome return to the Wilbur stage after his engagement two years ago in "Love Letters."

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—At least 16 local firms have shown interest in a training-retraining program to be held at Wilmington High School at the end of this month.

Sponsored by the Business-School Partnership, the courses offered include a Lotus 1-2-3 course using IBM computers, and a writing skills - public speaking class.

The computer course is designed for experienced and inexperienced trainees and will be limited to 14 students, with a second class added if numbers warrant. High school math computer teacher Kathleen Bell will run the eight-week class and English instructor Lillian Thuline will lead the writing skills course.

The program is not expected to make or lose money - it is being launched as a cooperative venture, according to Al Fessenden at the high school, a way "to give something back to business."

No expenses will be incurred by the school department - all course materials will be paid for by the partnership and returned to the school. The cost to each student for each class will be $100.

--Woburn's DARE program recently received a check for $5,000 in memory of Robert Logue, a therapist for more than 25 years in the field of chemical dependency, and former president of the Woburn Alcohol Drug Community Assistance Program.

Logue believed the lower the grade in which substance abuse education begins, the more likely it will be effective for the lifetime of the recipient - the money will be spent on drug education in the Woburn schools.

—The average of Tewksbury Memorial High School student SAT scores declined by 32 points between 1990 and 1991; and in 1991, students scored 27 points below the national average on the test.

One reason given for the decline is that more students are taking the test, including those who do not necessarily plan to go to college. In 1990, for example, 68 percent of TMHS students took the SAT while nationally, 42 percent took it. In 1991, the number of Tewksbury students taking the test increased.

--Stoneham's South School fourth graders were recently visited by Elementary Health Coordinator Carolyn Harrington, Middlesex County American Lung Association Program Director David Ales, and Stoneham High peer leaders Joan Zaya, Kerry O'Brien, Erin Walsh, Carrie Rivera, and Heather Edgecomb.

Ales urged each student to become a member of the smokeless class of 2000; and the peer leaders involved the students in role-playing situations designed to help them say no to trouble revolving around drugs, alcohol and peer pressure.

--The Reading Boosters Organization is planning a "gigantic" Craft Fair to be held at the Reading High School Field House on Saturday, April 4th from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The 101 craft booths are available for $35 each or $30 each for two to the same exhibitor. Electricity for each booth is $5 additional.

The Boosters themselves will run a food pavilion, raffle table and garden center. The fair will be well advertised and is expected to be extremely well attended. For more information, call Regina Murphy at (617) 944-1398 after 6 p.m. or Pat Black at (617)944-5420.

Song of The Sea at Salem museum

Men at sea in the Age of Sail sang songs for a variety of reasons - to accompany work, to ward off loneliness, to praise their God. But a very special kind of song was the "Forebitter," sung for sheer entertainment, and presented on Sunday, February 9 at 3 p.m. at the Peabody Museum of Salem. The exciting male quartet, Forebitter, is based at Mystic Seaport and accompany the rich vocal harmonies with a wealth of historical background. They will perform at the Sunday Family Concert, one of a series of monthly concerts in East India Marine Hall for which there is no charge beyond admission. For information about the program, call (508) 745-1876.

"LOVE LETTERS" RETURN TO WILBUR

A.R. Gurney's enormously successful Broadway and international hit, "Love Letters" is returning in time for Valentine's Day to the Wilbur Theatre beginning Tuesday, February 11. The play, which follows a couple's relationship through the humorous and touching letters they have exchanged since childhood, delighted Boston audiences when it was first presented at the Wilbur Theatre two years ago. John Tillinger who staged the Broadway production will direct this Boston engagement.

Starring in the show's first week (February 11-16) are Lauren Bacall and Richard Kiley. Taking over the roles of Melissa Gardner and Andrew Makepeace Ladd in its second week (February 18-23) are Jane Curtin and Edward Herrmann.

Screen legend Lauren Bacall debuted in "To Have and Have Not" and became an immediate hit in such film noir classics as "The Big Sleep" and "Key Largo." On Broadway, she received Tony Awards for Best Actress for "Applause" and "Woman of the Year."

Richard Kiley, the Tony Award Winning original star of "Man of La Mancha," makes a welcome return to the Wilbur stage after his engagement two years ago in "Love Letters."

it!" Don't ever, ever hold a grudge, because while you are as mad as a wet hen the other party is out dancing. She tells all the members of her Garden Gossip Club, "settle all your arguments every night and then get a good night's sleep because tomorrow something else will come up."

I took Kathy out to dinner over the holidays to a first class restaurant of which there are many in the Middlesex East area. She ordered steak which she got right away and I ordered a half-a-chicken. I called the waitress over about a half hour later and asked, "What's the delay, miss?" "The cook said," she explained, "that you will have to wait because he can't kill half a chicken. You will get your order when someone else comes in and wants the other half!"

Folks, you may not believe this but religion is as free as the water we drink. I know, I know, they are always asking for money at church and your water bills are high. The reason for that is that we must pay for the piping!

When the great baseball pitcher Dizzy Dean was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame, he said "The Good Lord has been good to me. He gave me a strong body, a good right arm and a 'weak' mind." My Aunt Nora said to me after reading this column, "Woodchips reminds me of the John Shea of North Reading tried to cross a crocodile with an abalone and what he got was a crock of baloney!"

Aunt Nora asked a department store floorwalker, "Sir, where can I find baby powder?" "It's three aisles over, walk this way." "If I could walk that way, I wouldn't need the baby powder!" One Sunday afternoon at Fenway Park, Paul Simon kept moaning, "30,000 people! 30,000 people." "What the heck is bothering you?" I asked. "30,000 people," Paul exclaimed, "and that darn pigeon is free to spot me!"

A rather stout teacher was talking to her first year class about birds and their habits. "I have a canary at home," she told the class. "Can anyone tell me what the canary can do that I can't do?" Little Mario DiMino raised his hand, then replied, "I know teacher. Take a bath in a saucer!"

My friend, Tony Stack from Dublin, Ireland, told me that he waited until he met a beautiful colleen whose birthday was February 29th before he got married. "What difference did it make when her birthday was?" I asked. Tony smiled and said, "I only have to worry about getting my wife Kathleen a birthday present once every four years!"

Police stopped a station wagon loaded with about 10 kids. He was looking over the woman driver's license and said, "Lady, don't you know when to stop?" "Look here, officer," she exclaimed, "these 10 kids are NOT all mine. They are girl scouts and I'm taking them to the Stone Zoo."

The reason a computer can do more work than a secretary is because it doesn't have to stop to answer the phone. It seems like every store I go into everyone ahead of me in the checkout aisle pays with a credit card. I wanted to pay cash yesterday and the cashier wanted to see my driver's license.

Right about this time of the year the hundred or more details of a June wedding are in the planning stage. Now, at almost every family social event, my Aunt Nora is as irritating as ants at a picnic. But, I must admit she was really helpful when plans were being made for my cousin Diane's upcoming wedding reception. One of the most important details that is often overlooked is the seating arrangement. Many times Aunt Nora interjected, "Oh No! You can't have Mario and Angelo sitting at the same table. They haven't talked to each other for over five years. And look here," Aunt Nora continued, "you have Maureen (the red-headed spitfire) and Teresa together. That's like mixing gasoline and fire." So, all of you making wedding arrangements, my Aunt Nora is available to help.

Fred Costa said that when he was a kid he'd bring an apple to his teacher. Now Fred's kids are sending the teachers bananas!

Medicare Savings For You?

If you are elderly and poor or disabled and poor, you might be able to get free Medicare.

Federal law requires that state Medicaid programs pay all Medicare costs for certain elderly and disabled persons with low-incomes and very limited assets. You might qualify for this assistance even if you did not work long enough to be covered by Medicare.

What this means is that you would not have to pay any money out of your own pocket for Medicare's deductibles, premiums and coinsurance. You would save hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars each year. To qualify:

•You must be either age 65 years or older, or disabled.

•Your annual income must be at or below the national poverty guidelines of $6,620 for one person or $8,880 for a couple. New guidelines for '92 coverage will be issued in February, 1992. Income includes Social Security benefits, pensions and wages, as well as interest payments and dividends.

•Your resources such as bank accounts, stock and bonds, cannot exceed $4,000 for one person or $6,000 for a couple. When resources are considered, your personal home, automobiles, burial plots, home furnishings, personal jewelry and life insurance are not counted, unless those items are of extraordinary value.

If you meet certain income and resource tests, your state's medical assistance (Medicaid) program will assist you in paying your share of Medicare costs.

If you think you qualify for this assistance, you should file an application for Medicaid at your state or local welfare, social-service or public health agency not a federal office that serves people on Medicaid.

MOVIES

"Shining Through" Short Takes

by Rochelle Flynn

"Shining Through" Starring Melanie Griffith, Michael Douglas, Liam Neeson. Directed and written by David Seltzer. Produced by Howard Roseman, Carol Baum. Based on the novel of the same name by Susan Isaacs. Rated R.

It's hard to tell just what part of "Shining Through" is the least believable: the comic book plot or the badly miscast leads.

The film is a period piece that begins just before the onset of World War II. Melanie Griffith plays Linda Voss, the full-time secretary and part-time paramour to Michael Douglas' Ed Leland. Only Leland is not just a lawyer, but an undercover Colonel in the Office of Strategic Services. Once America enters the war, he loses his cover, and Linda. As Leland marches off to spy on the bad guys, Voss settles for a lousy job with the War Department.

When Leland is transferred back to Washington, he once again hooks up with Voss. Only this time, she wants to do more than serve coffee and type letters. When one of Leland's operatives in Berlin is killed, Voss volunteers to step into his place. The fact that she can speak German and knows some of the secret codes seems to qualify her for this extremely dangerous mission.

Plausibility was obviously not a key component during the story conferences for this film. Not only is it utterly ridiculous to imagine the government placing an untrained office worker into a Gestapo stronghold, but Griffith's whispery voice and movie star persona make her unbelievable in the role. And it's not Griffith's fault. In fact, she turns in quite a good performance. Jut not good enough.

Douglas is barely around enough to judge, as he is mightily underused in the part. But what we do see is mediocre at best. Supporting players fare much better, as John Gielgud is brilliantly disdainful and arch in his small role, while Joely Richardson brings glamour and spirit to her role as an undercover agent.

Not that anything could save this script. It makes no sense that super sleuth Michael Douglas never learns one word of German, though he's often behind enemy lines. Then there is the complete ease with which Griffith's character places herself into the home of a top Gestapo officer.

Admittedly, there are scenes scattered throughout the film which are really top notch. The heartbroken look on Griffith's face when Douglas walks into a nightclub and Griffith realizes he came back into town, but not into her life. There is a stunning scene in which a terrified Griffith runs through the deserted streets of Berlin, her red opera cape and diaphanous white gown flying behind her.

Yet these scenes, and others, are substantive only because of their style, not because of their context. In fact, these scenes could have been viewed out of context and effectively achieved the same emotional result. There are great World War II yarns out there with substantive characters and a romantic twist that works. "Shining Trough" just isn't it.

Short Takes

Fried Green Tomatoes spins a rich story about two strong women who buck the system and live their lives as they like, not as they are expected. The story is told through Jessica Tandy's flashbacks as she tries to point out to Kathy Bates that her life can be anything she wants, if she is willing to live it. The film's few flaws can be overlooked in favor of Mary Stuart Masterson's lively performance and a great storyline. Rated. PG-13.

Love Crimes is an utterly ridiculous story about a prosecuting attorney (Sean Young) who goes after a con artist and sex offender (Patrick Bergin). She may, or may not, be psychologically scarred and she may, or may not, want to play Bergin's sex games. The story is salacious, makes little sense and has lousy production values. Rated R. *

The Hand that Rocks the Cradle is a shameless thriller that uses every trick in the book -- and makes them work. Rebecce De Mornay is the psycho nanny who hopes to do more than take care of the family she thinks ruined her. Creepy in a personal way, this shuddering escapism may rehash a tired theme, but it makes that theme cook. Rate R.  1/2

Rush tells the low life story of Texas nare officers who are not that far removed from the junkies they bust. Graphic, seamy and effectively moody, the film suffers from a slow-moving storyline and an excessively brooding performance from Jason Patric. Jennifer Jason Leigh is quite good as the naive cop who loses her innocence, and hates herself for it. Rated R. **

Bugsy tells the tale of Benjamin Siegel, the gangster who dreamt up Las Vegas. More the story of the man, not the mobster, this flick really has a great affinity for the charming, eccentric dreamer that was Siegel. Director Barry Levinson wisely made this a glitzy affair -- big in the old-fashioned sense of moviemaking. And yes, sparks really do fly between Warren Beatty and Annette Bening as the gangster and his main squeeze. Rated R. ***

Prince of Tides is a searing account of abuse and healing, starring Nick Nolte as a Southerner who finds redemption in the office, and the arms, of a New York psychiatrist, Barbara Streisand, who plays the therapist and directed the movie, is guilty of some tired cliches, but the film is still extremely powerful and entertaining. Nolte gives the performance of his career. Rated R.  1/2

ED LELAND (MICHAEL DOUGLAS) AND LINDA VOSS (MELANIE GRIFFITH) are lovers on a dangerous mission inside Nazi Germany in Twentieth Century Fox's romantic adventure "Shining Through," written and directed by David Seltzer.

JFK is Oliver Stone's intense version of what he believes to be the elaborate conspiracy behind the killing of John F. Kennedy. The theory alone is riveting, but coupled with Stone's innovative directing and some outstanding performances, this movie will leave you shuddering. You may have to remind yourself it's only a movie, only entertainment. Shave off points, however, for a ridiculously long and Capraesque courtroom scene used to tie up the loose ends. Rated R.  1/2
